Black Women and White Women in the Professions Natalie J. Sokoloff, 2014-01-09 Women of all racial ethnic backgrounds and minority men have been hailed as the major beneficiaries of the expansion in political economic and employment opportunities of the 1960s and 1970s The author uses data derived from a twenty year span of census material to provide a thorough analysis of gender and race segregation throughout the professional occupations in the U S during this period of massive social change She makes clear the advances achieved by all groups men and women black and white during this period of economic expansion as well as insightfully evaluating the differential advantage of white men against all other race gender groups At the same time Professor Sokoloff provides compelling evidence challenging several myths such as that of the two fer myth whereby black women are said to benefit two fold from their race and gender statuses from affirmative action

Women in Labor Allison L. Hepler, 2000 Early in the twentieth century states and courts began limiting the workplace hours of wage earning women in order to protect them from fatigue and ill health It was felt that a woman's role was to be a mother and that working too many hours in an often unhealthy and dangerous workplace created risks to the performance of that task In the 1970s many Fortune 500 companies began implementing fetal protection policies to prohibit women from working in areas deemed risky to reproductive capacity Again assumptions about motherhood were the driving force behind employment regulations Women in Labor examines how gender norms affected the workplace health of men and women Did the desire to protect women result in a safer workplace for all workers Did it advance or hinder the status of women in the work place In answering these questions Hepler describes a complex network of medical experts state bureaucrats business owners social reformers industrial engineers workers and feminists many with overlapping interests and identities This overlap often resulted in tradeoffs and unintended consequences For instance efforts promoting gender equality sometimes created equal risks for workers whereas emphasizing social realities resulted in job discrimination Reformists efforts to promote the important connection between the home and the industrial environment also allowed an employer to shirk responsibility for worker
