Newham Dockland:

The Desecularisation of the City David Goodhew, Anthony-Paul Cooper, 2018-09-21 Major cities have long been seen as centres of secularisation. However, the number of congregations in London grew by 50% between 1979 and the present. London's churches have been characterised more by growth than by decline in the decades since 1980. The Desecularisation of the City provides the first academic survey of churches in London over recent decades, linking them to similar developments in other major cities across the West. Produced by a large team of scholars from a range of disciplines, this volume offers a striking and original portrait of congregational life in London since 1980. Seventeen chapters explore the diverse localities, ethnicities and denominations that make up the church in contemporary London. The vitality of London's churches in the last four decades shows that secularisation is far from inevitable in the cities of the future. This study necessitates a significant reassessment of the dominant academic portrayal of Christianity in Britain and the West, which has mostly depicted cities as secular spaces within a secularising culture. It will be of great interest to scholars working across a wide range of disciplines including history, sociology, religious studies and theology. Newham's Dockland Newham (England). Dept. of Planning and Architecture. Dockland Group, 1976. A History of the County of Essex B. A. Board, 1987. Imperial Island Charlotte Lydia Riley, 2024-05-21 After the Second World War, Britain's overseas empire disintegrated. But over the next seventy years, empire came to define Britain and its people as never before. Drawing on a mass of new research, Riley tells a story of immigration and exclusion, social strife and cultural transformation. It is the story that best explains Britain today. What Happened to Planning? (Routledge Revivals) Peter Ambrose, 2014-04-23 This title was first published in 1986 during a recession much like that faced in recent years, which placed immense pressure on the British planning system and led to social unrest in the inner cities and in many disadvantaged areas. Within this context, Peter Ambrose outlines the features of land development and explores the circumstances of post-war planning. The central section of the book deals with the key forces at work in land development: finance, the construction industry and the local and central state, and explains how they interact. Using a number of case studies, including the greenfield urban fringe and London's docklands, as well as examples drawn from other countries, Ambrose provides an essential background to the British planning system and the problems still faced by it today. The Routledge Handbook of Architecture, Urban Space and Politics, Volume II Nikolina Bobic, Farzaneh Haghighi, 2024-11-22 Architecture and the urban are connected to challenges around violence, security, race and ideology, spectacle and data. The first volume of this handbook extensively explored these oppressive roles. This second volume illustrates that escaping the corporatized and bureaucratized orders of power, techno-managerial and consumer-oriented capitalist economic models is more urgent and necessary than ever before. Herein lies the political role of architecture and urban space, including the ways through which they can be transformed and alternative political realities constituted. The volume explores the methods and spatial practices required to activate the political dimension and the possibility for alternative practices to operate in the existing oppressive systems while not being swallowed by these structures. Fostering new political consciousness is explored in terms of the following themes: Events and Dissidence, Biopolitics, Ethics and Desire, Climate and Ecology, Urban Commons and Social Participation, Marginalities and Postcolonialism. Volume II embraces engagement across disciplines and offers a wide range of projects and critical analyses across the so-called Global North and South. This multidisciplinary collection of 36 chapters provides the reader with an extensive resource of case studies and ways of thinking for architecture and urban space to become more emancipatory. Chapter 1 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution CC BY 4.0 license.

Focusing on the reconfiguration of urban culture in relation to race marginalization and youth politics, James examines the shifting formations of memory, territory, cultural performance and politics. New Society, 1987 Urban Development Corporations Docklands Consultative Committee, 1988 Newham Dockland, 1995 Newham Dockland Newham's Dockland Newham, England. The organization of the public sphere has become the central political problem of the 1990s. Neither the centralized bureaucracies of Eastern Europe nor the liberal pluralist states of the West have been able to cope as their citizens demand more public services and greater democratic accountability. Increased competitiveness within a free market cannot satisfy these needs if anything it generates more victims dependent on government help. This book introduces the possibilities for democratic administration reforming the system of government so as to enhance public participation, improve the design of programmes and the delivery of services and to ensure a better working environment within the public sector. New Statesman, 1984-07 The Planner, 1990 The Dock and Harbour Authority, 1985
