Occupational Therapy and Multiple Sclerosis Jaime Seamans, 2013 The purposes of this study were to determine the number of PwMS people with multiple sclerosis across the lifespan in the United States and within a given sample who use occupational therapy OT services to determine the perceived need for OT services among PwMS and to determine reasons why PwMS might not use OT services including the effect of quality of life. Forty five PwMS responded to an anonymous researcher designed survey either online or through the mail The majority of PwMS who responded to the survey were not using OT services as a part of their treatment for MS for reasons including a lack of knowledge of OT limited or no health insurance coverage and lack of referral for OT treatment Many PwMS who have used OT in the past as a part of their treatment for MS felt that OT was helpful for them The results of the study suggest there is a marketing dilemma for the profession of occupational therapy There is a strong need for occupational therapists to market promote and advocate for the profession of OT to PwMS and to members of MS treatment teams Multiple Sclerosis Rehabilitation Marcia Finlayson,2012-08-01 MS is always in the back of your mind If there is something you want to do you always wonder if the MS will allow you do to it Darlene living with MS for 22 yearsLiving with multiple sclerosis MS is challenging and multidimensional MS pervades all aspects of life one's body becomes unpredictable and unreliable one's identity and sense of
