Barry,2009-05-26 A revelatory account of the brain's capacity for change When neuroscientist Susan Barry was fifty years old she experienced the sense of immersion in a three dimensional world for the first time Skyscrapers on street corners appeared to loom out toward her like the bows of giant ships Tree branches projected upward and outward enclosing and commanding palpable volumes of space Leaves created intricate mosaics in 3D Barry had been cross eyed and stereoblind since early infancy After half a century of perceiving her surroundings as flat and compressed on that day she saw the city of Manhattan in stereo depth for first time in her life As a neuroscientist she understood just how extraordinary this transformation was not only for herself but for the scientific understanding of the human brain Scientists have long believed that the brain is malleable only during a critical period in early childhood According to this theory Barry's brain had organized itself when she was a baby to avoid double vision and there was no way to rewire it as an adult But Barry found an optometrist who prescribed a little known program of vision therapy after intensive training Barry was ultimately able to accomplish what other scientists and even she herself had once considered impossible Dubbed Stereo Sue by renowned neurologist Oliver Sacks Susan Barry tells her own remarkable journey and celebrates the joyous pleasure of our senses
