Navigating Students' Mental Health in the Wake of COVID-19 James M. Kauffman,Jeanmarie Badar,2022-10-14 This book highlights the effects of the COVID 19 pandemic on the mental health needs of children and adolescents in order to shed light on future practice and reform needed to better deal with the aftermath of such devastating events The book identifies the conditions during any public health crisis that heighten the mental health needs of children and adolescents and suggests the reforms of mental health services needed to better meet the needs of children and youths during and following pandemics and other public health crises Importance is placed not only on addressing the effects of COVID 19 but on anticipating and preparing for other public health disruptions to the lives of those who have not reached adulthood. Although mental health services in all settings are considered special attention is given to the role of schools in providing for the mental health of children and adolescents and preparing for the mental health implications of future public health disruptions. The book will be of equal use to both students and researchers in the fields of mental health well-being and education as well as teachers, educational psychologists, social workers and practitioners working in schools and communities to address students' mental health needs. It will help readers better understand how and why COVID-19 was a negative influence on students' mental health and unpack how best to deal with the aftermath of the pandemic.

Developing a Business Concept. Project SmartWait

Seminar paper from the year 2019 in the subject Business economics Company formation Business Plans grade 17 Berlin School of Economics and Law language English abstract In today's world it seems like people are continuously engaging in a lifestyle which is characterized by lots of work activities responsibilities and very little spare time. One striking example of rather inefficient time management is the attendance of a doctor's appointment. Long waiting times at doctors' offices are one of the main reasons for patients' complaints. Patients increasingly perceive excessive waiting times as an indication of poor practice management which many of them are not willing to accept. Rather they demand a well-functioning patient-oriented time management. Self-evidently the dissatisfaction and fluctuation of patients are displaying major problems for doctors. Moreover long waiting times in practices are also a prevalent issue on the side of the practice personnel as trouble with time management and appointment scheduling resulting in crowded waiting rooms and dissatisfied patients causes doctors having to rush through a large number of patients in a limited time frame. Clearly the described problem of inefficient time management in doctors' offices negatively affects both patients and physicians. Furthermore both sides seem to have matching needs as time is at the essence. While patients are seeking to spend less time in the waiting room doctors are aiming to effectively manage their appointment scheduling and practice procedures. Thus this manifested problem requires a solution which addresses the needs and unifies the benefits for both patients and doctors. SmartWait approaches this problem through an innovative digital solution which optimizes time management in practices. The underlying concept of the idea and the business model architecture of SmartWait shall be discussed in depth in the following paper.
