and replacing the manager will lead to improved performance. In spite of numerous studies and ongoing attention to this interesting phenomenon, the effect of managerial successions on team performances remains a debated issue. Related to this issue is the investigation of the impact of a manager's attributes such as ability or experience. Do managerial skills affect team performance and if so, how can these attributes be assessed? The results of such studies might solidify an evaluation of a manager's work when carefully distinguishing between the manager's contribution to team success or failure and the team's own performance. As such investigations like those studied in this paper might help to break the today often criticized habit of hiring and firing a manager solely based on win/loss balances. Obviously, there is still a need to investigate this phenomenon in greater detail in a theoretical and empirical way.

Strategic Management in Non-Profit Organizations Robert D. Hay, 1990-08-28. Administrators and directors of non-profit organizations (NPOs) face most of the same challenges and problems that confront their counterparts in profit-making organizations. And while there are certain concepts of administration that are fairly universal in nature, they have to be applied sensitively to the unique situations facing every NPO. Author Robert D. Hay suggests that there is a body of knowledge that can be mastered by NPO managers that can transform a hit or miss approach into a professional method for achieving professional results within the context of each NPO's own unique environment, strengths, and weaknesses, and managerial philosophy. Comprehensive in its approach, Strategic Management in Non-Profit Organizations covers not only the development of strategic management planning but also its integration into the organization's operative functions such as operations, marketing, personnel, and finance. A distinctive feature of the book is a self-management evaluation of various objectives, strategies, and policies of the various functions which each non-profit organization has to perform. The self-evaluations will aid administrators not only in making strategic decisions but also in evaluating the strengths and weaknesses of their performance in accomplishing the objectives. The three introductory chapters of Part I provide essential background material on the nature of NPOs, the nature of management, and the nature of strategy. Part II is concerned with strategy formulation as it is conditioned by each NPO's specific philosophy and goals. Integrating the overall mission into the operative functions of any NPO, operations, marketing, personnel, and financing functions is addressed in Part III. In strategy implementation the focus of Part IV the major emphasis is placed on the managerial functions which have to be performed planning acquiring organizing leading coordinating and evaluating Based on 15 years of research of 65 different non profit organizations Strategic Management of Non Profit Organizations is an in depth response to the needs expressed by these organizations This volume will be profitably read by all who have a vital interest in providing the services of NPOs as well as those associated with public agencies Management and Performance Andrew D.
