Mathematical Disabilities A Cognitive Neuropsychological Perspective:

Mathematical Disabilities Gérard Deloche, Xavier Seron, 2018-09-03 Originally published in 1987 interest in mathematical cognition was not new in psychology However it was rediscovered in the 1970s under the influential work of the Geneva School In particular Piaget's work on conservation including conservation of number profoundly influenced developmental psychologists who working first in the Piagetian theoretical framework began to discover a broader set of topics in mathematical cognition In developmental psychology the field continued to expand and covered a wide range of topics During the same period however no such evolution occurred in neuropsychology and except for some studies around the time of publication very little had been published on acalculia and number processing disorders However a more general theoretical evolution occurred in neuropsychology mainly due to increasing collaboration between clinical and experimental neuropsychologists on the one hand and cognitive psychologists on the other The objective of this book was to promote an evolution in the neuropsychology of calculation and number processing deficits and thus to introduce clinical and experimental neuropsychologists as well as developmental and cognitive psychologists to recent research and theoretical approaches that are of particular interest for the neuropsychological approach to mathematical cognition Mathematical Cognition Brian Butterworth, Lisa Cipolotti, 1996 This volume is a collection of all papers published in Volume One of the journal Mathematical Cognition The aim of the journal is to provide a forum for explorations of how we understand mathematics and how we acquire and use mathematical concepts The journal encourages an interdisciplinary approach to the field and publishes advances in the study of the mental representation and use of mathematical concepts from a range of disciplines This first volume features contributions from cognitive psychology developmental psychology philosophy neuroscience education computational modelling and neuropsychology Handbook of Mathematical Cognition Jamie I.
