The Pantanal of Mato Grosso (Brazil) F.D. Por,1995-07-31 Until now there has never been a monograph devoted to the Pantanal the world s largest wetland The subject has received scant attention in the international literature so a number of scattered Portuguese papers are reviewed for an English language readership The book presents a broad treatment of the Pantanal ranging from geology to flora fauna and the human presence The publication of this book is most timely and will be of crucial importance in decisions affecting the ambitious project for a second South American inland Waterway Cattle in the Backlands Robert W. Wilcox,2017-01-24 Brazil has the second largest cattle herd in the world and is a major exporter of beef While ranching in the Amazon and its destructive environmental consequences receives attention from both the media and scholars the states of Mato Grosso and Mato Grosso do Sul actually host the most cattle A significant beef producer in Brazil beginning in the late nineteenth century the region served as a laboratory for raising cattle in the tropics where temperate zone ranching practices do not work Mato Grosso ranchers and cowboys transformed ranching s relationship with the environment including the introduction of an exotic cattle breed the Zebu that now dominates Latin American tropical ranching Cattle in the Backlands presents a comprehensive history of ranching in Mato Grosso Using extensive primary sources Robert W Wilcox explores three key aspects the economic transformation of a remote frontier region through modern technical inputs the resulting social changes especially in labor structures and land tenure and environmental factors including the long term impact of ranching on ecosystems which he contends was not as detrimental as might be assumed Wilcox demonstrates that ranching practices in Mato Grosso set the parameters for tropical beef production in Brazil and throughout Latin America As the region was incorporated into national and international economic structures its ranching industry experienced the entry of foreign investment the introduction of capitalized processing facilities and nascent discussions of ecological impacts developments that later affected many sectors of the Brazilian economy Mato Grosso : land of images Magna Domingos,Angela Magalhães,Nadja Peregrino,2008 Memories of the Mato Grosso, Brazil Ralph Martell,1989 Agriculture in Brazil and Argentina , United States Board on Geographic Names: Gazetteer United States Board on Geographic Names,1963 Index to Map of Hispanic America American Geographical Society of New York,1943 The regional travel guide for Mato Grosso (Brazil) ,2025-09-25 Indian Tribes of Northern Mato Grosso, Brazil Kalervo Oberg,1979 Brazil United States. Board of Regents,1898 Measuring the Initial Impacts on Deforestation of Mato Grosso's Program for Environmental Control Kenneth M. Chomitz,Sheila Wertz-Kanounnikoff,2005 Although private forest use in Brazil has been regulated at least since the Forest Code of 1965 cumulative deforestation in the Brazilian Amazon reached 653 000 km<sup>2</sup> by 2003 INPE 2004 Much of this deforestation is illegal In 1999 the State Foundation of the Environment FEMA in Mato Grosso introduced an innovative licensing and enforcement system to increase compliance with land use regulations If successful the program would deter deforestation that contravenes those regulations including deforestation of riverine and hillside forest permanent preservation areas and reduction of a property's forest cover below a specified limit the legal forest reserve requirement This study seeks to assess whether introduction of the program affected landholder behavior in the desired direction Simple before after comparisons are not suitable for this purpose because there is considerable year to year variation in deforestation due to climatic and economic conditions Nor is it valid to assess program impacts by comparing licensed and unlicensed landholders even though the program focused its enforcement efforts on the former This is because first landholders with no intention of deforesting may choose to become licensed and second unlicensed landholders may be deterred from deforestation by the mere existence of a serious program that aims for universal licensing To meet these challenges the study applies a difference in difference approach to geographically explicit data It looks for and confirms post program declines in deforestation in high priority enforcement areas relative to other areas in more easily observed areas relative to less easily observed areas and in areas of low remaining forest cover where further deforestation is probably illegal relative to high remaining forest cover Thus even against a backdrop of higher aggregate deforestation driven in part by higher agricultural prices there is evidence that the program in its early stages before 2002 did shift landholder behavior in a direction consistent with reduced illegal deforestation The legality of deforestation was not however directly observed The study hypothesizes that this behavioral change resulted from an initial perception of increased likelihood of the detection and prosecution of illegal deforestation following announcement of the program The study does not assess Mato Grosso's new system for environmental regulation SLAPR impacts following the change of state administration in 2003 World Bank web site Archiv 63-64 Weltmuseum Wien Friends, Annual Report of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution Smithsonian Institution,1898 The Birds of Matto Grosso, Brazil Elsie Margaret Binger Naumburg,1930
