Landscape Ecology in Agroecosystems Management Lech Ryszkowski,2001-12-27 Successful management of agricultural landscapes depends on the recognition of the relationships between the processes and the structures that maintain the system. The rapidly growing science of Landscape Ecology quantifies the ways these ecosystems interact and establishes a link between the activities in one region and repercussions in another.

A Forest Landscapes and Global Change João C. Azevedo, Ajith H. Perera, M. Alice Pinto, 2014-07-11 Climate change, urban sprawl, abandonment of agriculture, intensification of forestry and agriculture, changes in energy generation and use, expansion of infrastructure networks, habitat destruction and degradation, and other drivers of change occur at increasing rates. They affect patterns and processes in forest landscapes and modify ecosystem services derived from those ecosystems. Consequently, rapidly changing landscapes present many new challenges to scientists and managers. While it is not uncommon to encounter the terms global change and landscape together in the ecological literature, a global analyses of drivers of change in forest landscapes and their ecological consequences have not been addressed adequately. That is the goal of this volume: an exploration of the state of knowledge of global changes in forested landscapes, with emphasis on causes and effects and challenges faced by researchers and land managers. Initial chapters identify and describe major agents of landscape change: climate, fire and human activities. The next series of chapters address implications of changes on ecosystem services, biodiversity, conservation and carbon flux. A chapter that describes methodologies of detecting and monitoring landscape changes is presented, followed by a chapter that highlights the many challenges forest landscape managers face amidst of global change. Finally, we present a summary and a synthesis of the main points presented in the book. Each chapter will contain the individual research experiences of chapter authors, augmented by review and synthesis of global scientific literature on relevant topics as well as critical input from multiple peer reviewers.

Archaeology of Domestic Landscapes of the Enslaved in the Caribbean James A. Delle, Elizabeth C. Clay, 2022-08-02 While previous research on household archaeology in the colonial Caribbean has drawn heavily on artifact analysis, this volume provides the first in-depth examination of the architecture of slave housing during this period. It examines the considerations that went into constructing and inhabiting living spaces for the enslaved and reveals the diversity of people and practices in these settings Contributors present case studies using written descriptions period illustrations and standing architecture in addition to archaeological evidence to illustrate the wide variety of built environments for enslaved populations in places including Jamaica the Bahamas and the islands of the Lesser Antilles They investigate how the enslaved defined their social positions and identities through house yard and garden space they explore what daily life was like for slaves on military compounds they compare the spatial arrangements of slave villages on plantations based on type of labor and they show how the style of traditional laborer houses became a form of vernacular architecture still in use today This volume expands our understanding of the wide range of enslaved experiences across British French Dutch and Danish colonies Contributors Elizabeth C Clay James A Delle Todd M Ahlman Marco Meniketti Kenneth Kelly Hayden Bassett James A Delle Kristen R Fellows Allan D Meyers Elizabeth C Clay Alicia Odewale Meredith D Hardy Zachary J M Beier Mark W Hauser A volume in the Florida Museum of Natural History Ripley P Bullen Series Publication of the paperback edition made possible by a Sustaining the Humanities through the American Rescue Plan grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities

Space, Time, and Archaeological Landscapes Jaqueline Rossignol,LuAnn

Wandsnider,1992-08-31 The last 20 years have witnessed a proliferation of new approaches in archaeological data recovery analysis and theory building that incorporate both new forms of information and new methods for investigating them The growing importance of survey has meant an expansion of the spatial realm of traditional archaeological data recovery and analysis from its traditional focus on specific locations on the landscape archaeological sites to the incorporation of data both on site and off site from across extensive regions Evolving survey methods have led to experiments with nonsite and distributional data recovery as well as the critical evaluation of the definition and role of archaeological sites in data recovery and analysis In both survey and excavation the geomorphological analysis of landscapes has become increasingly important in the analysis of archaeological materials Ethnoarchaeology the use of ethnography to sharpen archaeological understanding of cultural and natural formation processes has concentrated study on the formation processes underlying the content and structure of archaeological deposits These actualistic studies consider patterns of deposition at the site level and the material results of human organization at the regional scale Ethnoarchaeological approaches have also affected research in theoretical ways by expanding investigation into the nature and organization of systems of land use per se thus providing direction for further study of the material results of those systems
