Other Immigrants:

Immigration in the Global Era: Migrants and the People and Laws at Origin and Destination Guillermina Jasso, Moshe Semyonov, 2021-09-27      World Scientific Handbook Of Global Migration (In 3 Volumes) Robert M Sauer, 2024-02-21

As globalization and the flow of labor across the world accelerated during the latter part of the 20th century the presence of foreign born workers in a country's labor market became one of the most prominent and controversial features of modern economies. Countries that facilitated the arrival of foreign born individuals often benefited from the increase in labor supply. An important channel for the benefits is through lower prices for consumer goods and services in the host country. This is not surprising because immigration is just another form of international trade which often leads to cost savings and more diversity in the market. The immigrants themselves have also gained from international migration as it provides an opportunity to improve one's standard of living, pass remittances to family in the country of origin and find new opportunities for general human flourishing in newly adopted surroundings. Despite the myriad benefits that can result from the free movement of labor around the world there is still deep concern and political debate about immigration's aftermath. The main economic concern apart from social concerns such as social cohesion centers on whether international migrants adversely impact labor market opportunities of natives. The labor market prospects for foreign born individuals both in an absolute sense and in comparison to natives are also very different across continents as well as between countries that are in close proximity to one another. This variation could be driven by differences in the flexibility and structure of the host country's labor market or differences in the characteristics of the immigrants themselves. Examining the relative importance of these and other possible factors is another main theme in the study of immigration and the labor market. It is also addressed in the research presented in this Handbook.

New Patterns of Immigrant Settlement in California, Annual Report of the Immigration and Naturalization Service United States. Immigration and Naturalization Service, The Elections in Israel 2009 Michal Shamir, 2017-07-28. The elections to the 18th Knesset legislature of Israel were held on February 10, 2009, almost three years after the elections to the 17th Knesset and approximately twenty months before the original date set for them to be held. The elections are best understood in the context of the wars that were at each end of Ehud Olmert's government tenure, corruption scandals involving the prime minister and the failure of Tzipi Livni, the newly elected head of the ruling center party Kadima, to form a new coalition following Olmert's resignation. The election campaign of 2009 began with the resignation of Ehud Olmert in the shadow of his corruption scandals and issues of integrity and clean government. This was followed by the world financial crisis which directed attention towards the economic dimension and performance of the candidates. On the face of it, the campaign was cut short when military action began in Gaza. Still, the election was on the minds of candidates and the question of who can best ensure security prevailed in the campaign. It became personalized and focused on the candidates, the two candidates who had once headed the government and aspired to return Benjamin

Netanyahu and Ehud Barak and the chairperson of Kadima Tzipi Livni who was running for the first time as head of a party
