Media Freedom in Ghana Kwesi Nyarkoh Koomson, 2016-08-29 Scientific Essay from the year 2013 in the subject Communications Journalism Journalism Professions course None language English abstract A free press is the cornerstone of a democratic society. It has been said that liberty depends on the freedom of the press. However, when these freedoms and rights are left unrestricted or without borders, there are likely to be abuses. This write-up looks to figure out the provisions in the 1992 constitution that protect the independence and freedom of the press and also try to find out if there are other provisions in the constitution as well as other legal documents that act as checks on these rights and freedoms. The write-up will later examine situations that could warrant deliberate restrictions on media freedom. The write-up has been organized into seven sub-headings, namely article 162 of the 1992 constitution, the media brief history of the media in Ghana, press freedom and the role of the media in Ghana, the need for press freedom in Ghana, abuses of press freedom in Ghana, and circumstances that would warrant restrictions on the media without jeopardizing the human rights of Ghanaians.
