

EL PAPA LUNA

BENEDICTO XIII

Papa Luna

José RICO DE ESTASEN, Pedro de LUNA
(Antipope, calling himself Pope Benedict XIII.)

Papa Luna:

Papa Luna Gordon K. Greene, 2017-06-26 The Catholic Church officially designates Benedict XIII as a Pedro de Luna 1328-1423 as an antipope a person who made a significantly recognized claim to the papal throne but whose claim was ultimately rejected. Author and historian Gordon K. Greene disagrees with this assessment. Seeking to right a historical wrong, he has written a fictionalized account of Papa Luna's life in an effort to show that during the troublesome Western Schism period 1378-1417, in which three men including Benedict XIII simultaneously claimed to be pope, Benedict XIII was the only legitimate contender and that rational minds devoid of racial bias should have recognized him as the legal pope. Gordon's novel is fictional in the sense that he has created certain characters and situations to help bring Papa Luna to life. However, his account is factual concerning the main events of Papa Luna's life: his roots in Catalonia, his schooling at Montserrat Abbey and Montpellier University, his main appointments including serving as papal legate in the early years of the Hundred Years War, negotiations between France and England, his personal acquaintance with Petrarch and Chaucer, his election to the Avignon papacy in 1394, and his defence of his right to the papal throne at the Council of Constance in 1415, when he was eighty-seven years old. Whether or not Gordon's depiction of Papa Luna's life convinces you that Benedict XIII should have been recognized as pope, there is no question that this novel tells a fascinating story of one man's struggle to stay true to his beliefs during one of the most troublesome periods in Church history. In the process, Gordon reveals the all too human machinations that often determined who was and who was not elected to this most holy of divine offices.

Religious Individualisation Martin Fuchs, Antje Linkenbach, Martin Mulsow, Bernd-Christian Otto, Rahul Bjørn Parson, Jörg Rüpke, 2019-12-16 This volume brings together key findings of the long-term research project Religious Individualisation in Historical Perspective. Max Weber Centre for Advanced Cultural and Social Studies, Erfurt University. Combining a wide range of disciplinary approaches, methods, and theories, the volume assembles over 50 contributions that explore and compare processes of religious individualisation in different religious environments and historical periods, in particular in Asia, the Mediterranean, and Europe from antiquity to the recent past. Contrary to standard theories of modernisation which tend to regard religious individualisation as a specifically modern or early modern as well as an essentially Western or Christian phenomenon, the chapters reveal processes of religious individualisation in a large variety of non-Western and pre-modern scenarios. Furthermore, the volume challenges prevalent views that regard religions primarily as collective phenomena and provides nuanced perspectives on the appropriation of religious agency, the pluralisation of religious options, dynamics of de-traditionalisation and privatisation, the development of elaborated notions of the self, the facilitation of religious deviance, and on the notion of dividuality.
