Necropolitics of the Ordinary Ruth E. Toulson,2025-01-28 Can a state make its people forget the dead Cemeteries have become sites of acute political contestation in the city state of Singapore Confronted with high population density and rapid economic growth the government has ordered the destruction of all but one burial ground forcing people to exhume their family members In this ethnography of Chinese funeral parlors and cemeteries anthropologist and trained mortician Ruth E Toulson demonstrates this as part of a larger shift to transform a Daoist infused obsession with ancestors into a sterile more easily controlled Protestant Buddhism Further in a context where the dead remain central to family life forced exhumation tears the social fabric turning ancestors into ghosts Using death ritual and grieving as interrogative lenses Toulson explores the scope of and resistance to state power over the dead laying bare the legacies of colonialism and consequences of whirlwind capitalist development In doing so she offers a new anthropology of death one both more personal and politicized Written in accessible prose rich with ethnographic detail the book is suitable for undergraduate teaching in anthropology Asian studies religious studies sociology and history
