Human Aggression Adrian Perkel, 2023-12-12 Unlocking the Nature of Human Aggression is a neuropsychanalytic and scientific exploration of aggression and argues for its central role in psychopathology and the genesis of individual symptoms as well as in broader systemic conflicts and violence Adrian Perkel creates a unique theoretical approach to the various manifestations we encounter of individual group and geo political aggression and destructiveness Based on psychoanalytic investigations of this dynamic and Freud's incomplete exploration of this human drive this book seeks to understand the science of aggression that Freud himself suggested would be possible with time and scientific development Perkel investigates the commonplace inversion of the perpetrator and victim narratives navigating through the complexity of how the aggressive drive often driven by feelings aimed at homeostatic regulation challenges the perception of any objective view of who is perpetrator and who victim He includes his own personal experiences of South African Apartheid as well as historical and contemporary data such as speeches from historical figures during times of war including the Second World War and the Ukrainian Russian conflict Offering a fresh and innovative insight into the nature of this paradoxical drive in humans this book integrates the psychology psychodynamics and neuroscience of modern research into a coherent exposition of this key aspect of psychic functioning in humans It is an essential read for analysts in practice and training psychologists and other mental health professionals and students looking for a modernised theoretical model of the destructive and aggressive drive of the psyche to facilitate better interventions for individual and couple patients and for interventions at systemic and organisational levels

The incidence of aggression and violence is of wide concern It is therefore vital that we try to understand the mechanisms involved This book outlines definitions and theories of aggressive behaviour and points out the contribution of both biological and psychological factors Aggression primarily occurs within an interpersonal exchange and is often accompanied by increased arousal and negative feelings It is most likely to occur in response to provocation but individuals differ in what they consider constitutes provocation Aggressive behaviour is both multicausal and multifaceted but in order to study it we have to break it down into components and find ways in which to measure these This book describes a body of research examining the conditions under which the behavioural affective and physiological components of aggression are elicited A specific experimental technique which measures behavioural aggression in the laboratory is described The task was found to be sensitive to individual differences in aggressive disposition Aggression is not however confined to a small group of extremely hostile individuals Alcohol or substance abuse is often associated with aggression in the general population The results of some studies examining the effects of alcohol and benzodiazepines on the feelings and behaviour of healthy volunteers are reported The way in which people appraise a situation influences the way they feel and behave These drugs therefore impair the ability to process socially relevant information which in turn lowers the threshold at which aggressive behaviour is likely to occur It is only by continuing to study the complex interaction between pharmacological and psychological factors that we will gain more insight into the processes underlying aggressive behaviour Essays on Violence J. Martín Ramírez, Robert A. Hinde, Jo Groebel, 1987 Human aggression Joachim Sauer, 1974 Why War? Richard Overy, 2024-06-04

An Economist Best Book of the Year Richard Overy is one of the world's finest military historians His book is timely for those interested in preventing war Gen Mark Milley U S Army retired 20th Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Army magazine Why has war been such a consistent presence throughout the human past A leading historian explains drawing on rich examples and keen insight Richard Overy is not the first scholar to take up the title question In 1931 at the request of the League of Nations Albert Einstein asked Sigmund Freud to collaborate on a short work examining whether there was a way of delivering mankind from the menace of war Published the next year as a pamphlet entitled Why War it conveyed Freud's conclusion that the death drive made any deliverance impossible the psychological impulse to destruction was universal in the animal kingdom The global wars of the later 1930s and 1940s seemed ample evidence of the dismal conclusion A preeminent historian of those wars Overy brings vast knowledge to the title question and years of experience unraveling the knotted motivations of war His approach is to separate the major drivers and motivations and consider the ways each has contributed to organized conflict They range from the impulses embedded in human biology and psychology to the incentives to conflict developed through cultural evolution to competition for resources conflicts stirred by the passions of belief the effects of ecological stresses the drive for power in leaders and nations and the search for security The discussions show remarkable range delving deep into the Neolithic past through the twentieth century world wars and up to the current conflict in Ukraine The examples are absorbing from the Roman Empire s voracious appetite for resources to the impulse to power evident in Alexander the Great Napoleon and Hitler The conclusion is not hopeful but Overy s book is a gift to readers a compact judicious engrossing examination of a fundamental question An Ethological Study of Children's Behavior William Clement McGrew,1972 Nature's Altars Susan R.
