Designing Learning for Multimodal Literacy Fei Victor Lim, Lydia Tan-Chia, 2022-11-30 Designing Learning for Multimodal Literacy addresses the need to design learning for multimodal literacy in a world that is increasingly saturated with print and digital media In the current age communication and interactions on social media are seldom made with language alone but are often accompanied with emojis images and videos making meanings multimodally Young people including children are also increasingly active in making videos of themselves their ideas and their experiences as part of their out of school literacy activities In particular for language teachers the present shifts in our world require that teachers re examine what they teach and how they can meaningfully and effectively teach the students in their classes today At 8 years old Alden created his own rap music video and shared it with the world He wrote his own lyrics and set it against the music he remixed and meshed from a music download site Alden is in your classroom today As his teacher what would you teach him How would you engage him Alden and children like him is the inspiration for why the authors have written this book The changing times and changing learners place a demand on educators to continually reflect on what and how teachers are teaching their students to ensure that learning in school remains relevant relatable and prepares them for the world of the future Lim s book outlines how teachers can design learning for multimodal literacy It is a result of a collaboration between an educational researcher and a curriculum developer and offers practical resources for practitioners but also design principles and considerations based on practice with a range of students to inform and inspire academics and postgraduate students It is poised to contribute to the global conversation and interest on how educators can reflect on the zeitgeist of the digital age and design learning for multimodal literacy
