Telling October Frederick Corney, 2018-08-06 All revolutionary regimes seek to legitimize themselves through foundation narratives that told and retold become constituent parts of the social fabric erasing or pushing aside alternative histories Frederick C Corney draws on a wide range of sources archives published works films to explore the potent foundation narrative of Russia's Great October Socialist Revolution He shows that even as it fought a bloody civil war with the forces that sought to displace it the Bolshevik regime set about creating a new historical genealogy of which the October Revolution was the only possible culmination This new narrative was forged through a complex process that included the sacralization of October through ritualized celebrations its institutionalization in museums and professional institutes devoted to its study and ambitious campaigns to persuade the masses that their lives were an inextricable part of this historical process By the late 1920s the Bolshevik regime had transformed its representation of what had occurred in 1917 into a new orthodoxy the October Revolution Corney investigates efforts to convey the dramatic essence of 1917 as a Bolshevik story through the increasingly elaborate anniversary celebrations of 1918 1919 and 1920 He also describes how official commissions during the 1920s sought to institutionalize this new foundation narrative as history and memory In the book's final chapter the author assesses the state of the October narrative at its tenth anniversary paying particular attention to the versions presented in the celebratory films by Eisenstein and Pudovkin A brief epilogue assesses October's fate in the years since the collapse of the Soviet Union
