OECD Input-Output Database \( 1-10 Users Version\) OECD Staff, Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development Staff, 1996-11-01    The OECD Input-Output Database Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development. Economic Analysis and Statistics Division, 1995    OECD Input-Output Database, 2006    The OECD Input-output Database, 2002    The OECD Input-output Database, 2002    The OECD Input-Output Database Laudeline Auriol, 2006    Knowledge-Based Services, Internationalization and Regional Development Peter Daniels, 2017-05-15 The acquisition and management of information is central to the operation and marketing of many service providing firms and other organizations. Their varied knowledge requirements influence approaches to organizational structure relationships to other organizations, the location of operations and entry into new markets. In this book an international and interdisciplinary team of leading scholars examines the attributes of knowledge acquisition and diffusion within and across service providing organizations. Using a variety of case examples they pay particular attention to the processes of internationalization and the ways in which service providing organizations affect regional economic development.

Armington Elasticities in Intermediate Inputs Trade Mika Saito, 2004-02-01 This paper finds that the estimates of Armington elasticities, the elasticity of substitution between groups of products identified by country of origin, obtained from multilateral trade data can differ from those obtained from bilateral trade data. In particular, the former tends to be higher than the latter when trade consists largely of intermediate inputs. Given that the variety of intermediate inputs traded across borders is increasing rapidly and that the effect of this increase is not adequately captured in multilateral trade data, the evidence shows that the use of multilateral trade data to estimate Armington elasticities needs caution.    The Feminist Economics of Trade Irene van Staveren, Diane Elson, Caren Grown, Nilufer Cagatay, 2012-08-06 Unravelling the complex relationship between gender inequality and trade, this is the first book to combine the tools of economic and gender analysis to examine the relationship between international trade and gender relations. It brings together fourteen contributions from a variety of economic perspectives, including structuralist, institutionalist, neoclassical and Post Keynesian, by a range of authors, including Lourdes Benería, William Darity, Marzia Fontana and Mariama Williams, to demonstrate what feminist economics has contributed to the analysis of international trade through theoretical modelling, econometric analysis and policy oriented contributions. It includes evidence from industrialized, semi-industrialized and agrarian economies, using country case studies and cross country analysis. Arguing that trade expansion and reduction of gender inequality can be combined but only if an appropriate mix and sequence of trade and other economic policies is implemented, this book is key reading for all students of international economics, gender and cultural studies and politics and international relations amongst other disciplines.

This dataset provides statistics on domestic Input Output tables describing the sale and purchase relationships between producers and consumers within an economy They can be produced by illustrating flows between the sales and purchases final and intermediate of industry outputs or by illustrating the sales and purchases final and intermediate of product outputs The domestic input output tables are covering various industry sectors such as agriculture finance real estate heath retail and more The OECD Input Output database reflects in part the collection mechanisms for many other data sources such as Research and Development expenditure data employment statistics pollution data energy consumption which are in the main collected by enterprise or by establishment and thus according to industry classifications

Aggregate Investment Expenditures on Tradable and Nontradable Goods Rudolfs Bems,2008-02 This paper shows that aggregate investment expenditure shares on tradable and nontradable goods are very similar across countries and regions Furthermore the two expenditure shares have remained close to constant over time with the average expenditure share on nontradables varying between 0 54 0 62 over the 1960 2004 period These empirical findings offer a new restriction for two sector models of the aggregate economy Combined with the fact that the relative price of nontradables correlates positively with income and exhibits large differences across space and time our findings suggest that tradable and nontradable goods in investment can be modeled using the Cobb Douglas aggregator OECD Statistics Catalogue ,2007 Online databases CD ROMs books periodicals Understanding Economic Statistics: An OECD Perspective Enrico Giovannini,2008-10-28 The aim of this book is to help the reader to better understand how to use economic statistics in general and OECD statistics in particular P 3 OECD Science, Technology and Industry Scoreboard 2011
