Adler McGill University Canada This timely Companion examines the unique codes and processes of managing gender diversity equality and inclusion in Asia Managing Gender Diversity in Asia covers the whole geography of Asia through chapters authored by eminent scholars in the field and thus provides an authoritative tool for a critical and evidence based understanding of gender diversity management in Asia The distinctive nature of Asian institutional structures approaches and processes are examined in order to account for variations in representation and inclusion at work for women and men This comprehensive Companion will make ideal reading for researchers postgraduate students and practitioners who wish to understand the methodological and thematic idiosyncrasies of researching gender diversity management in organisational settings

Gender Participation in Forest Resource Management Thị Hồng Vân Nguyễn, 2018 This book aims to assess how the Co Tu peoples an ethnic minority living in the central region of Vietnam benefit from participation in a benefit sharing mechanism which allows legal collection of non timber forest products inside special use forests The research also examines social and cultural influences which impact on cultural harvesting and gender relations in the commune and households particularly in regards to local rights and roles in harvesting the products The results indicate that benefits from collecting non timber forest products after introduction of the benefit sharing mechanism were insignificant when compared with before its introduction Furthermore development activities under the benefit sharing mechanism did not have any impact on local people in terms of diversification of livelihood strategies nor did it increase household income Women in particular faced limitations in participating in the benefit sharing mechanism s program as a result of strong customary laws within their ethnic group However the benefit sharing mechanism did increase women s knowledge on equal rights and roles in access to and control over forest resources and their sense of responsibility in forest management and conservation Back cover

Nontimber Forest Products in the United States Eric T. Jones, Rebecca Jean McLain, James F. Weigand, 2002 A quiet revolution is taking place in America's forests Once seen primarily as stands of timber our woodlands are now prized as a rich source of a wide range of commodities from wild mushrooms and maple sugar to hundreds of medicinal plants whose uses have only begun to be fully realized Now as timber harvesting becomes more mechanized and requires less labor the image of the lumberjack is being replaced by that of the forager This book provides the first comprehensive examination of nontimber forest products NTFPs in the United States illustrating their diverse importance describing the people who harvest them and outlining the steps that are being taken to ensure access to them As the first extensive national overview of NTFP policy and management specific to the United States it brings together research from numerous disciplines and analytical perspectives such as economics mycology history ecology law entomology forestry geography and anthropology in order to provide a cohesive picture of the current and potential role of NTFPs The contributors review the state of scientific knowledge of NTFPs by offering a survey of commercial and noncommercial products an overview of uses and users and discussions of sustainable management issues associated with ecology cultural traditions forest policy and commerce They examine some of the major social economic and biological benefits of NTFPs while also addressing the potential negative consequences of NTFP harvesting on forest ecosystems and on NTFP species populations Within this wealth of information are rich accounts of NTFP use drawn from all parts of the American landscape from the Pacific Northwest to the Caribbean From honey production to a review of nontimber forest economies still active in the United States such as the Ojibway
