Managing Pilot Stress:

Pilot Judgment and Crew Resource Management Richard S. Jensen, 2017-03-02 This is the first comprehensive book on pilot judgment. It provides a clear understanding of pilot judgment emphasizing how it can be applied to improving safety in aviation. The author brings together a rich store of personal flying experiences combined with a strong base of personal academic research to support the concepts presented. The book gives not only a strong emphasis to the application of judgment to aviation but also lays particular stress on the principles needed in how to learn, teach, and evaluate judgment. For pilots, the main benefits to be gained from the book will be a foundation of knowledge and teaching to enable them to make better, safer decisions. For flight instructors, it teaches how to teach and evaluate judgment in flight students. In addition to pilots and flight instructors, the readership obviously includes aviation classroom instructors, scientists doing aviation-related research, and aviation safety specialists.

Managing Pilot Stress Michael Thomas, 1989 Describes the characteristics, causes, and effects of pilot stress, suggests stress reduction techniques, and shares the experiences of commercial pilots. The Effects of Pilot Stress Factors on Handling Quality Assessments During US/German Helicopter Agility Flight Tests, 1982

Aerospace Health and Safety: Today and the Future, volume II Christopher Scheibler, Mardi A. Crane-Godreau, Eileen Mcneely, Russell Tontz, Philip Parks, 2025-11-12 This Research Topic follows on from the editors' previously successful volume I. Aviation plays vital roles in commerce, defense, science, and leisure travel. Irrespective of the purpose of the flight, crew and passengers are exposed to a variety of environmental conditions that can differ widely from work and travel on the surface of the Earth. Novel changes in the aerospace industry have brought new challenges to safeguarding the health of crew and passengers with additional exposure to the space environment. Civilian spaceflights by Blue Origin, Virgin Galactic, and SpaceX highlight the direction of the space industry towards commercialization of space, with future space travel being dominated by average civilians, including people with underlying health conditions and disabilities. The aviation industry is expected to soon return to pre-COVID era levels, where over 4 billion passengers fly annually. Aviation is safe for most travelers; however, older flyers, people with preexisting disease, and other vulnerable passengers such as young children and pregnant women may be at risk of complications, and crew may be at special risk due to cumulative flight-related exposures over a career. Health concerns include, but are not limited to, circadian rhythm disruption, low-level cosmic ionizing radiation, reduced oxygen delivery, and tissue hypoxia, cabin air contamination by engine gases, toxic materials used in uniforms and aircraft cabin components, occupational noise and vibration, pesticides used for cabin disinfection, inadequate crew rest, cardiovascular demands, and effects of flight-related dehydration, lack of traveler health screening protocols, effects of alcohol use in flight, psychological stress associated with air travel, effects of long-haul flights on thromboembolic events, and smoking cessation efforts, job-related stress, and harassment among crew. On-board medical emergencies run a wide gamut, and the capacity to respond becomes more problematic as the duration of flights increases or in the case of travel over oceans and the poles Medical events related to flight may present in the days following exposure and therefore we encourage manuscripts that address in flight medical response as well as events in the post flight period In addition aviation as a vector for the carriage of disease is a significant concern to public health as demonstrated in the SARS CoV 2 pandemic outbreak and we welcome submissions regarding infectious disease epidemiology and medicine as it relates to air travel There exist many identified concerns of space travel with unknown impacts on the average traveler s health including but not limited to space motion sickness space related psychological effects acceleration forces and microgravity cardiovascular responses and fluid shifts bone and muscle loss and spaceflight associated neuro ocular syndrome These exposures are in addition to general aviation related factors discussed previously that space travelers will also encounter Future anticipated flights including suborbital orbital and lunar travel and habitation raise a host of new questions regarding the health and safety of crew and passengers What will be the occupational requirements for crew What will be the accommodations and functional requirements for passengers Who will be allowed to travel Perhaps the most interesting question is who will make the rules In this Research Topic we welcome contributions from those whose work and interests are relevant to the health and safety of aerospace crew and passengers This includes but is not limited to health and safety professionals FAA examiners corporate medical officers aerospace and occupational physicians physiologists military and scientific team members public health professionals as well as engineers who are tasked with crew and passenger design projects All submissions should be framed within the standards of high level academic rigor Hypotheses should be testable We welcome the submission of research studies reviews opinion pieces and book reviews that are relevant to this topic Topic editor Philip Parks founded and is employed by H21 All other Topic Editors declare no competing interests with regards to the Research Topic subject

Jensen, 1988 Aviation accident data indicate that the majority of aircraft mishaps are due to judgement error This training manual is part of a project to develop materials and techniques to help improve pilot decision making Training programs using prototype versions of these materials have demonstrated substantial reductions in pilot error rates. The result of such tests were statistically significant and ranged from approximately 10% to 50% fewer mistakes. This manual is designed to explain the risks associated with commercial flying activities, the underlying behavioral causes of typical accidents, and the effects of stress on pilot decision making. It provides a means for the individual pilot to develop an Altitude Profile through a self assessment inventory and provides detailed explanations of pre flight and in flight stress management techniques. The assumption is that pilots receiving this training will develop a positive attitude toward safety and the ability to effectively manage stress while recognizing and avoiding unnecessary risk. This manual is one of a series on Aeronautical Decision Making prepared for the following pilot audiences: 1 Student and Private 2 Commercial 3 Instrument 4 Instructor 5 Helicopter 6 Multi Crew. Keywords: Human factor, Human performance, Aviation safety, Aviation training, Pilot error, Judgement, Decision making, Commercial pilots, Professional pilots. kt
