

Reflection: From non-being (wu 無) to being

- Wu, used as the negation of being, stands for “what is not there”, which is not an independent state, but complement the state “what is there”.
- Laozi ch11: “By adding and removing clay we form a vessel. But only by relying on what is not there, do we have use of the vessel.”（埏埴以為器，當其無，有器之用。）
- “Being and Non-being are dependent of, and complementary to, each other.” Non-being generates Being, but it is also immanent/inherent in Being.

The Bodily Nature of Consciousness Kathleen Virginia Wider, 1997 In this work Kathleen V Wider discusses Jean Paul Sartre's analysis of consciousness in Being and Nothingness in light of recent work by analytic philosophers psychologists and neuroscientists She brings together phenomenological and scientific understandings of the nature of consciousness and argues that the two approaches can strengthen and support each other Work on consciousness from two very different philosophical traditions the continental and analytic contributes to her explanation of the deep seated intuition that all consciousness is self consciousness
