Humanist theoretician Raya Dunayevskaya and the critical theorist Herbert Marcuse second to identify the intersections of the Critical Theorists Jürgen Habermas and Marcuse's influential reinterpretations of Marx's value theory of economy and society that enables navigation of the changing relationships of the social and economic spheres in the last century as developed in Marx's Grundrisse and thirdly to assess the potential of Moishe Postone's renewal of Marx's value theory largely conceived by the notion of a necessity and freedom dialectic intrinsic to capitalism The Philosophy of Freedom Rudolf Steiner, 1916 Essays and dissertations Benjamin Jowett, 1894 The Open Court, 1889 A Study of Ethical Principles James Seth, 1894 Scripture and Truth Benjamin Jowett, 1907 The Bounds of Freedom Oded Balaban, Anan Erev, 1995 The Straniak Philosophy Prize 1995 awarded by the Hermann and Marianne Straniak Foundation Sarnen Switzerland This book explores Eastern and Western ideas of freedom and reveals the essential differences as well as similarities between Eastern and Western cultural values Inspired by an ancient Greek myth recounted by Protagoras the authors suggest that three important values tend to motivate human activity achieving pleasure achieving results and obeying moral law Then drawing on intellectual sources ranging from traditional Hinduism to modern existentialism the authors proceed to show how these values pleasure efficiency and morality determine the idea of freedom as it appears in various philosophical systems of East and West In the course of their analysis the idea of freedom is itself emancipated from the usual kinds of cultural boundaries that have so often limited both its usefulness and its timeliness The Republic of God Elisha Mulford, 1889
