Maternal Overprotection

David M. Levy

Maternal Overprotection:

Maternal Overprotection David M. Levy, 1966 This is a study of the number of experiences that may reinforce maternal behavior without assuming that the explanation must necessarily and primarily psychoneurosis as in compensatory overprotection based on unconscious hostility to the infant The differentiation between neurotic and pure overprotection are considered in the text

Maternal Overprotection David M. Levy, 2021-12-13 Authors who from today's perspective and in the face of current research were far ahead of their time were often misunderstood or simply ignored by their contemporaries And even if an excerpt from an extensive work is always subjective it still offers a middle ground between subsuming under a catchphrase on the one hand and intensive preoccupation with the work on the other If you want to deal intensively with the work please refer to www archive org where the full version is available for free

Taming the Troublesome Child Kathleen W. Jones, 1999-09-15 In Taming the Troublesome Child these questions lead to the complex history of child guidance a specialized psychological service developed early in the twentieth century Kathleen Jones puts this professional history into the context of the larger culture of age class and gender conflict

BOOK JACKET

Stress Hormones and Post Traumatic Stress Disorder E. Ronald de Kloet, Melly S. Oitzl, Eric Vermetten, 2007-12-18 Post traumatic stress disorder PTSD arises from the experience of severe stressors and trauma The disorder is characterized by recurrent recall of intrusive memories to the event nightmares with insomnia emotional numbing hyperarousal which are all long lasting and relatively resistant to therapy The focus of this book is on the question of how stress hormones are involved in PTSD Recent evidence suggests that a dysregulation in stress hormones promotes the precipitation of PTSD and that correction of these hormones may ameliorate the disorder This book combines state of the art basic research on stress hormones from gene to behaviour with clinical research demonstrating the progress in understanding via imaging techniques genetics vulnerable phenotypes and co morbidity with other disorders and physical illness

Maternal Overprotection and Child Social Anxiety Wesley D. Allan, 2002 A primary goal of parenting is to develop secure parent child attachment In this process some parents may display overprotective parenting behaviors that are potentially maladaptive for the parent child relationship or child adjustment Specifically research has demonstrated a relationship between perceived parental overprotective behaviors and various forms of child adjustment problems including anxiety depression and disruptive behaviors This study tested a mediational model of the relation between parental overprotection and child social anxiety involving intervening child cognitive factors One hundred and three children and their mothers completed a battery of questionnaires of maternal overprotection maternal anxiety child social anxiety and other adjustment problems depressive symptoms disruptive behaviors and child cognitive styles distortions locus of control hopelessness Confirmatory Factor Analysis supported a Measurement Model consisting of eight latent variables Parental Overprotection Maternal Care Child Social Anxiety child report Child Depression child report Child Acting Out Behaviors child report Child Social Anxiety mother report Child Depression mother report and Child Acting Out Behaviors mother report A direct effects structural equation model SEM was tested initially exploring the predictive power of 1 parental overprotection for child social anxiety child depression and child acting out behaviors and 2 maternal care for child social anxiety depression and acting out behaviors A mediated model was tested also examining the mediational effects of child cognitive styles This model did not demonstrate adequate fit to the data despite model respecification and was discarded in favor of the direct effects model Significant path coefficients were found for Parental Overprotection arrow right Child Social Anxiety child report Maternal Care arrow right Child Acting Out Behaviors child report Maternal Care arrow right Child Depression mother report and Maternal Care arrow right Child Acting Out Behaviors mother report The differential relations of overprotection and care to the disparate child adjustment issues is of note Specifically parental overprotection appears to play a role in the development or maintenance of child social anxiety whereas maternal care is of import with regard to child depression and child acting out behaviors

Culture and Family Wen-Shing Tseng, 1991 Discover brilliant insights on dealing with the cultural aspects of family mental health with this landmark guide Culture and Family systematically reviews various dimensions of the family from a cross cultural perspective including system development behavior and functioning It then thoroughly examines the problems and dysfunctions that can occur in families of different cultural backgrounds and finally proposes culturally appropriate assessments and treatments for resolving these family problems Family counselors therapists and researchers who study the family will find practical suggestions on how to assess and evaluate the family with cultural considerations clinical suggestions on providing culturally relevant effective care of the family and theoretical elaboration on the cultural implications of family therapy Instead of focusing on families of a particular ethnic or cultural background the book gives comprehensive coverage to subjects that related to cultural aspects of the family function problems and therapy The authors unique backgrounds which include analysis of the cross cultural aspects of human behavior knowledge in family research and clinical experience in family therapy add immeasurably to this new book s important contribution

Parental Overprotection Gordon Parker, 1983 Is Experiential Avoidance a Factor in Maternal Overprotection? Melissa M. Nieves, 2013 The current study examined experiential avoidance EA as an explanation for parental overprotectiveness a behavior often found among parents of anxious children EA parenting theory posits that parents engage in overprotective behaviors in order to reduce their own anxiety In order to test the theory mothers electrodermal activity EDA and blindly coded overprotective behaviors were examined when a child with SAD was engaged in a reading performance task In line with EA theory it was hypothesized that EDA levels would increase before an overprotective behavior OB occurred and decrease afterwards as a result of decrease in anxiety The sample consisted of mothers with a child diagnosed with SAD n 5 and mothers with a child with no diagnoses n 5 Each mother child dyad participated in an ABAB design protocol consisting of a baseline period two 10 minute reading tasks and a recovery period between the two tasks Although mothers of both groups displayed OBs mothers of children with SAD displayed OBs more often In addition mothers of children with SAD displayed more promotion of avoidance while mothers of normal control children displayed higher frequencies of control over the reading task The EDA activity that surrounded the first occurrence of any coded OB was examined Contrary to the hypothesis all mothers regardless of child s anxiety status displayed similar trends in their EDA data with levels increasing but then decreasing shortly before an OB behavior occurred rather than afterwards However one mother with an elevated social anxiety score revealed an EDA pattern similar to what was hypothesized Possible explanations for these alternate findings are discussed and include a multidisciplinary conceptualization The study s findings hold theoretical and practical implications particularly for parent training in the treatment of childhood anxiety disorders Limitations such as small sample size and directions for future research are discussed

Parenting and Psychopathology Carlo Perris, Willem A. Arrindell, Martin Eisemann, 1995-02-17 Divided into two parts I theory assessment and methodology and II clinical issues parental rearing behaviour and psychopathology this book describes the results of a long term multinational research project concerning the relationship between the experience of parental rearing attitudes and the development of personality characteristics and specific psychopathological disorders including alcoholism eating disorders depression schizophrenia obsessive compulsive disorder and suicidal thoughts The editors have brought together an international team of authors all of whom are leading authorities in their own fields from the USA Europe China Japan and Australia thus enabling them to provide an evaluation of parental rearing attitudes in different cultures This book appears in The Wiley Series in Clinical Psychology Series Editor J Mark G Williams University College of North Wales Bangor UK

Social Support and Psychiatric Disorder Traolach S. Brugha, 1995-08-24 This second volume in a series looking at the social dimensions of mental illness collates and critically examines the information currently available on social support as it impacts on mental health The international team of contributors each actively involved in both clinical and research work in this field collectively covers the whole range of perspectives from biological mechanisms through to psychological and social theory An overview of the latest published evidence and a description of the nature and origins of social support are followed by evidence from observational studies and specific interventions and trials The text concludes with a summary which will act as a valuable resource for practitioners in their evaluation of social and psychological treatments and should also serve to stimulate further research and intervention trials Practitioners and researchers in psychiatry psychology and social work are certain to welcome this timely guide

Girlhood in America Miriam Forman-Brunell, 2001-06-08 This groundbreaking reference work presents more than 100 articles by 98 high profile interdisciplinary scholars covering all aspects of girls roles in American society past and present In this comprehensive readable two volume encyclopedia experts from a variety of disciplines contribute pieces to the puzzle of what it means and what it has meant over the last 400 years to be a girl in America The portrait that emerges reveals deep differences in girls experiences depending on socioeconomic context religious and ethnic traditions family life schools institutions and the messages of consumer and popular culture Girls have been commodified idealized trivialized eroticized and shaped by the powerful forces of popular culture from Little Women to Barbie Yet girls are also powerful co creators of the culture that shapes them often cleverly subverting it to their own purposes From Pocahantas to punk rockers girls have been an integral if overlooked and undervalued part of American culture

Cognitive Benefits of Technologies Applied to Learning in Education Beatriz Peña-Acuña, Yolanda Navarro Abal, Pedro Román-Graván, Pedro Tadeu, Manuel León-Urrutia, Javier Ávila-López, Rafael Crismán Crismán Pérez, Carmen M. Toscano-Fuentes, Carmen María Martín Del Pino, 2025-03-12 In general scientific inquiry about the benefits of digital gadgets focused on learning at all stages of Education is providing cognitive affective and attitudinal variables However cognitive effects stand out among these effects In this topic of inquiry that we propose we intend to investigate the phenomenon from a simple discipline to a multidisciplinary point of view that is from interventions that work transversally on some transversal theme in different disciplines or with a review approach from various points of view We also propose it to deepen the phenomenon with interventions that are investigated from an interdisciplinary perspective taking into account the qualitative and or quantitative study of a variable from one discipline and another variable from another discipline Likewise other studies of the cognitive effects of technologies in learning with paradigms or innovative approaches and evaluation of more complex interventions can be considered We are in a moment of transition from the use of analogue materials to digital tools platforms applications gadgets tablets mobiles etc and advanced technology formats immersive realities and artificial intelligence This is a moment of technological transformation in which the benefits of new technologies in learning are beginning to be investigated both in interventions with grouping in individual perspective or in an interactive and collaborative perspective among equals It also coincides with the development of neuroscience and psychology applied to Education This research topic aims to contribute to deepen this topic and provide a global vision It also intends to indicate to what extent the development of the cognitive is relevant as well as to extend the variables that must be considered
