Agriculture in the GATT ,1986      Agricultural liberalization in multilateral and regional trade negotiations (Working Paper SIT1 = Documento de Trabajo IECI n. 3) Marcos Sawaya Jank, Ian Fuchsloch, Géraldine Kutas, 2003      Multilateral Trade Negotiations Ivan Roberts, 2000      Agriculture in the GATT Charles E. Hanrahan, 1986      Review of the Uruguay Round of Multilateral Trade Negotiations Under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade United States. Congress. House. Committee on Agriculture. Subcommittee on Department Operations, Research, and Foreign Agriculture, 1992      WTO Negotiations on Agriculture and Developing Countries Anwarul Hoda, Ashok Gulati, 2007

The World Trade Organization's Doha Round of trade talks has been plagued by a lack of concrete progress toward establishing a fair and harmonious agricultural trading system. Because the results of the Doha Round could have far reaching implications for the trade and economic prospects of developing countries in the twenty first century it is critical for these countries to fully understand the issues involved in the negotiations on agriculture. However there has been no authoritative analysis of the rules and modalities on which governments of developing countries can rely. This book coauthored by an insider to the trade talks that led to the establishment of the WTO fills this gap. The volume begins with a detailed analysis of the provisions of the WTO's Agreement on Agriculture and the modalities of the negotiations. It examines the implementation experience of key members of the WTO then traces the developments in the negotiations up to the recent impasse. In light of these considerations and on the basis of a case study of India the authors propose various elements of a negotiating position and strategy for developing countries. The authors offer tough but realistic recommendations regarding tariffs, market access, treatment of sensitive or special products and other aspects of international trade. This book will be of particular interest to researchers and practitioners as well as students seeking in depth knowledge of the recent history of agricultural trade talks.

Agricultural Trade Negotiations United States. General Accounting Office, 1991      Developing Countries and the Next Round of Multilateral Trade Negotiations Anne O. Krueger, 2016. Broad based liberalization is in the interests of developing countries. Developing countries became full fledged participants in multilateral trade negotiations only with the Uruguay Round during which they succeeded in bringing agriculture into the GATT. WTO reaching agreement on phasing out the Multi Fibre Arrangement within 10 years and beginning work on services among other things. Their overriding interest in the new round is still to ensure the healthy expansion of an open multilateral trading system. Developing countries should seek across the board liberalization rather than zero for zero reductions which tend to favor the interests of industrial countries which focus on sectors in which they have comparative advantage and diminish the support for further cuts. Liberalization of agricultural trade provides important opportunities. Developing countries have a considerable stake in reducing agricultural protection and subsidies and prohibiting agricultural taxes and export quotas. Of particular interest are agreements covering services including for example agreements on ways to permit the temporary immigration of construction workers. It is important that labor standards not be used to stifle competition from labor abundant developing countries that any agreement about labor standards not raise the costs of unskilled labor in countries whose comparative advantage lies in exported products that use unskilled labor extensively and that excessively high product standards not be imposed. Developing countries can increase their leverage substantially by forming coalitions based on common interests in a wide range of areas as the Cairns group did in the Uruguay Round. This paper a product of Trade Development Research Group is part of a larger effort in the group to identify opportunities for developing countries in the WTO 2000 negotiations. Report on Agricultural Concessions in the Multilateral Trade Negotiations, 1981. Making Progress in Global Agricultural Trade Canada. Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada, 2003. This update provides current information on what is happening in the World Trade Organization WTO agriculture negotiations. It deals with such matters as the Doha mandate for agriculture negotiations, the draft modalities text of the Chairman of the WTO agriculture negotiations, the Doha Development Agenda, Canada's objectives for the agriculture negotiations, the domestic policies and negotiating positions of the United States, European Union and key developing countries. Agricultural Trade Policies in the New Millennium Andrew D O'Rourke, P. Lynn Kennedy, Won W Koo, 2004-11-15. Face the challenge of change in the global agricultural trade market. This insightful book presents a comprehensive overview of the trade situation facing agriculture in the 21st century. This esteemed collection of the field's foremost researchers evaluates anticipated changes to the agricultural trade market and the competitiveness of commodities and products resulting from existing and potential international policies. Agricultural Trade Policies in the New Millennium provides an in depth understanding of multilateral trade negotiations past present and future and the impact of regionalism on agricultural trade. It also analyzes trade issues specific to individual commodities such as rice, wheat and cotton. Agricultural Trade Policies in the New Millennium consolidates essential trade research into a one of a kind reference source for economists, academics and agriculture professionals. The book provides a detailed overview of current and potential trade situations divided into three concise sections: key issues influencing trade negotiations from the perspective of developed and developing countries and the environment; commodity trade and trade policy issues concerning competitiveness and the international policy environment for coarse grains, cotton, rice, sugar and wheat; and general issues related to multilateral and regional trade agreements including policy tools within the World Trade Organization anti dumping actions regionalism price volatility and the macroeconomic effects of trade liberalization Agricultural Trade Policies in the New Millennium examines key issues influencing trade negotiations commodity trade and trade policy issues and concerns related to multilateral and regional trade negotiations challenges facing trade policy prospects for the agricultural sector in the new millennium With international policy issues like the WTO s Millennium Round and the Free Trade Area of the Americas FTAA in negotiation and a new United States farm bill pending Agricultural Trade Policies in the New Millennium provides much needed textbook analysis by expert researchers This vital book will keep you in touch with current trade negotiations and policy decisions that are certain to hold major implications for the agricultural sector

Report on Agricultural Concessions in the Multilateral Trade Negotiations United States. Agricultural Marketing Service,1981 Reforming Agricultural Trade for Developing Countries Alex F. McCalla,John D. Nash,2006-11-09 In the ongoing Doha Development Round of World Trade Organization negotiations developing countries have had much greater leverage due at least in part to their large and growing share of world trade But will the increased influence of developing countries translate into a final agreement that is truly more development friendly What would be key ingredients in such a final outcome of the negotiations and what would the developing countries really get out of it This two volume set seeks to answer these questions This volume Volume 2 addresses the question of how a development friendly outcome to the talks would affect developing countries by quantifying the impact of multilateral trade reform It presents several different approaches to modeling the effects of the outcome of negotiations and then investigates why these and other modeling efforts produce such divergent results Volume 1 is issues oriented It takes up some key questions in the negotiations setting the stage with a historical overview of the Doha Development Agenda to help identify issues of most significance to developing countries and then explores select issues in greater depth Aimed at policymakers and stakeholders this two volume effort puts into the public domain important analytical work that will improve the chance for a pro development outcomes of the Doha round negotiations
