Multi-Version Texts in Early Modern Europe Belén Bistué,2016-05-23 Focusing on team translation and the production of multilingual editions and on the difficulties these techniques created for Renaissance translation theory this book offers a study of textual practices that were widespread in medieval and Renaissance Europe but have been excluded from translation and literary history The author shows how collaborative and multilingual translation practices challenge the theoretical reflections of translators who persistently call for a translation text that offers a single univocal version and maintains unity of style In order to explore this tension Bistu discusses multi version texts in both manuscript and print from a diverse variety of genres the Scriptures astrological and astronomical treatises herbals goliardic poems pamphlets the Greek and Roman classics humanist grammars geography treatises pedagogical dialogs proverb collections and romances Her analyses pay careful attention to both European vernaculars and classical languages including Arabic which played a central role in the intense translation activity carried out in medieval Spain Comparing actual translation texts and strategies with the forceful theoretical demands for unity that characterize the reflections of early modern translators the author challenges some of the assumptions frequently made in translation and literary analysis The book contributes to the understanding of early modern discourses and writing practices including the emerging theoretical discourse on translation and the writing of narrative fiction both of which as Bistu shows define themselves against the models of collaborative translation and multi version texts Reworking English in Rhetoric and Composition Bruce Horner,Karen Kopelson,2014-07-25 In Reworking English in Rhetoric and Composition editors Bruce Horner and Karen Kopelson gather leading scholars and new voices in the field of rhetoric and composition to offer a dynamic new perspective on English as it is used today This provocative volume explores the myriad ways in which English is constantly redefined revised and redirected through specific located acts of writing rhetoric teaching and learning Contributors provide insightful contributions to the study of English from both national and international perspectives revealing the language as a fluid and constantly changing manner of expression that challenges established notions In part one Reworking Language writers call into question the idea of language as a static stable entity In part two Locations and Migrations Global Local Interrogations contributors explore the impact of writing and teaching English in both in the United States and abroad from Arkansas and Oklahoma to China Jamaica and Lebanon Part three Pedagogical Institutional Interventions addresses English in institutional settings and the implications for future pedagogical work Each essay in this revolutionary volume substantiates two key premises for the rethinking of English first that languages are susceptible to constant change through the very acts of writing teaching and learning and second that this reworking occurs as it moves between various temporal and spatial locations Throughout the volume the variety and flexibility of English across the globe are both advocated and revealed rejecting dominant Anglophone perspectives and instead placing language in cross cultural contexts Brimming with informative and thought provoking insights Reworking English in Rhetoric and Composition breathes new life into the field and provides direction for scholars and teachers looking to the future of English
