Multinational Corporations and Local Firms in Emerging Economies Eric Rugraff, Michael W. Hansen, 2011 In order for foreign direct investment to have deep and lasting positive effects on host countries it is essential that multinational corporations have close direct and indirect interaction with local firms A valuable addition to the emerging literature on multinational local firm interfaces this book provides a number of case studies from emerging economies that examine such mutually beneficial business relationships and the policy measures necessary to support them Multinational Joint

Ventures in Developing Countries (RLE International Business) Paul Beamish, 2013-01-04 This book examines how joint ventures work in practice Drawing on extensive personal experience and using case study examples where appropriate the author analyses the various stages discusses the problems of partner selection implementation and control and points out the various benefits and pitfalls He draws out the implications for improving practice and discusses how the experience of joint ventures affects the theory of the multinational enterprise Multinational Investment in Developing Countries

Thomas Andersson, 2002-09-11 This book explores the struggle for gains from direct investment between multinationals and developing countries It discusses which policies work best in influencing the behaviour of MNEs and how developing countries compete with one another for multinational investment It argues that the tax regimes of different countries rarely deter investors but that nationalisation acts as a powerful disincentive It also concludes that governments should not be expected to sacrifice the environment to attract multinationals Multinationals of the South Khushi Mohammed Khan, 1986 Proceedings of an international conference organized by the German Overseas Institute held Nov 6 8 1985 Hamburg

Germany Country Risks and the Investment Activity of U.S. Multinationals in Developing Countries Alexander Lehmann,2006 This paper develops a simple real options model that demonstrates the role of country specific risk and sunk costs in determining a multinational's choice between exports and foreign investment. The hypotheses from the model are tested for the distribution of capital expenditures by U.S. owned foreign affiliates in 29 developing countries during 1984-95. Political and economic risk ratings are identified as deterrents to foreign capital formation scale economies unit wage differentials trade openness and agglomeration effects are found to be stimulating. These findings provide an additional rationale for a multilateral investment agreement that could function as an agency of restraint.
