Go Books Gordon Winch, 1997 Bush, City, Cyberspace John Foster, Ern Finniss, Maureen Nimon, 2005-06-01 Aimed at academic professional and general readers Bush city cyberspace provides a snapshot of the state of Australian children's and adolescent literature in the early twenty first century and an insight into its history In doing so it promotes a sense of where Australian literature for young people may be going and captures a literary and critical mood with which readers in Australia and beyond will identify The title of the work is intended to capture the fact that the field has changed dramatically in the century and a half that Australian children's literature has existed from the bush myths and heroism that inform the past and the present through the recognition that the vast majority of authors and readers live in cities to the third wave of cyberliterature that incorporates multimedia hypertext weblinks and e books none of which lessens the enduring enthusiasm of practitioners and readers for books Bush city cyberspace is not meant to be an encyclopedic volume Rather well known recent and or award winning works have been emphasised with the addition of others where these help to illuminate particular points The book is similar in coverage and approach to Australian Children's Literature An Exploration of Genre and Theme written by the same three authors and published by the Centre for Information Studies in 1995 In the intervening period much has changed in the field notable examples including the blurring of the dividing line between quality and popular literature the blending of genres the rise of a truly indigenous literature the demise to a significant extent of Outbackery in fiction the acceptance of multiculturalism as the norm and the advent of the literature of cyberspace with new methods and the sheer speed of communication between writer and reader All these trends and others are reflected in this work The Oxford Companion to Australian Children's Literature Stella Lees, Pam Macintyre, 1993 Arranged

Crago, Hugh Crago, 1983 This is the first in depth study of a preschool child's interaction with picture and story books Based on five years of intensive observation of the author's daughter Anna the book provides detailed verbatim records of Anna's questions and comments as she listened to books being read aloud It is a fascinating scholarly contribution to those interested in language acquisition The first part of the study presents Anna's reactions to six books ranging from Where the Wild Things Are at two years to The Story of Doctor Dolittle at four and a half The authors analyze what Anna said and did drawing on contextual material to make it clear that initially inexplicable or irrelevant remarks are not only logical but often indicative of underlying emotional dynamics as well Part two describes Anna's reaction to fictional experience in her own play and spontaneous monologue of which several examples are transcribed and analyzed in full The third section begins with two chapters devoted to the visual dimension of Anna's book experience In chapters dealing with humor fantasy plot narrative voice identification and emotion the authors use their findings to shed new light on frequently asked but rarely answered questions What do children laugh at Are some books too frightening for children Is a happy ending vital in a story for young children Can preschoolers understand the difference between fantasy and reality A to Zoo Carolyn W. poetry generally Shank's Mare Ron Strickland, 1988 Australia Helen M. Madeley, 1949 Law Institute Journal, 1993 The Yellow Lady Alison Broinowski, 1992

The Yellow Lady is the first major critique of Australian impressions of Asia. Alison Broinowski argues that Australians have been backward in developing an appropriate image of themselves because of their ignorance of and ambivalence towards Asians. She traces the history of Australian ideas about Asia and the Pacific from pre colonial time to the present and concludes that some of these perceptions no matter how irrational or archaic continue to underlie the political and economic decisions Australians make about the Asia Pacific region. No one has ever looked so exhaustively at Australian images of Asia. Alison Broinowski a longtime diplomat and writer about Asian issues identifies these images where they come from and how they have changed or not changed. She investigates artists who took an interest in Asia and why they did so. They include visual artists, novelists, film makers, composers, architects, poets, potters, playwrights, photographers, puppeteers and choreographers. Japan receives the greatest attention as a continuing source of both modernity and tradition. Beginning with early Aboriginal contact with Indonesians, The Yellow Lady shows how chances for harmonious co existence with the neighbourhood were lost in the colonial period. Successive wars set back this process of adaptation. In the final section as increasing numbers of Asians migrate to Australia and Asian countries become economically dominant, Australian images of Asia undergo rapid change. Alison Broinowski argues that until Asia is accepted as part of the mainstream of Australian life, Australians will remain uncertain about their status and that if Australia's international image is to change it must begin by acknowledging the reality of Asia.
