Christensen, 2024 Providing a survey of Anglophone African detective fiction from the late 1940s to the present day this study traces its history both as a literary form and a mode of critical exploration of the fraught sovereignties of the African state and its citizens Since the late 1940s African writers including Cyprian Ekwensi Arthur Maimane Adaora Lily Ulasi Hilary Ngweno Unity Dow Parker Bilal and Angela Makholwa have published over 200 murder mysteries police procedurals spy thrillers and other fictional narratives of investigation and discovery in English language newspapers magazines and novels Distributed widely across the continent's diverse cultural and political geographies these texts share aesthetic characteristics and thematic preoccupations that reflect transnational networks of production circulation and influence Anglophone African Detective Fiction 1940-2020 surveys this literary history and examines how African writers have repeatedly harnessed the detective story to interrogate postcolonial realities of selfhood and the state It argues that African writers have turned the detective story into a highly productive while at the same time suspense filled and entertaining mode of social and political critique first of colonialism and the independence era and latterly of neoliberal governance Offering an overview of paradigmatic texts from Ghana to Kenya and Sudan to South Africa the book traces the contours of the history of Anglophone African detective fiction that is at once a cultural history of a uniquely African assessment of the ongoing problematics of sovereignty and decolonization

Neoliberalism and the Novel Emily Johansen, Alissa

Karl, 2017-12-22 The novel form has long been connected to modern capitalism and is arguably the literary genre most prominently enmeshed in contemporary global markets Yet as many critics have suggested about capital something has changed in the last forty years With the rise of neoliberalism as the dominant global economic rationality and mode of governance the experience of capital has produced new ways of seeing and relating to the world leading as David Harvey observes to the financialization of everything The novel indexed to capital in myriad ways then must similarly have been transformed Neoliberalism and the Novel investigates both those changes wrought to the novel form by changing arrangements of capital and the novel's broader engagement with neoliberalism itself The chapters in this book consider these questions from a variety of angles attending to the way in which the neoliberal novel deploys familiar generic patterns as a site from which to offer critique examining the changing operation of labour and time under neoliberalism and its effect on novel form and offering a broader call for new reading and interpretative practices to respond to changing socio economic realities This book was originally published as a special issue of Textual Practice
