Pacific Hope:

Hope at Sea Teresa Shewry, 2015-09-16 As far back as Thomas More's Utopia and Francis Bacon's New Atlantis the Pacific Ocean has inspired literary creations of promising worlds. Hope at Sea asks how literary writers have more recently conceived the future of ocean living. In doing so, it provides a new perspective on art and imagination in the face of enormous environmental change. Drawing together ecocriticism, theories of hope and literary analysis, this book explores how literary writers evoke hope in engaging with environmental upheavals that are reshaping life in the Pacific Ocean. Teresa Shewry considers contemporary poetry, short stories, novels, art and journalistic pieces from Australia, New Zealand, Hawaii and other ocean sites, examining their imaginative accounts of present life and future living in places where humans coexist with environmental loss, rivers that no longer reach the sea, dwindling populations of ocean life, the effects of nuclear weapons testing and more. These works are connected by their views of a future that includes hope. Until now, hope has never been theorized in a direct, sustained way in ecocriticism. Hope at Sea makes an argument for hope as a lens for creative and critical confrontation with environmental disruptions and the resulting sense of loss. It also reflects on the critical approaches that hope as an analytic category opens up for the study of environmental literature. With hope as a critical perspective, Shewry develops a method for reading environmental literature: literary writers create new ways to apprehend existing environmental realities and craft stories about seas, forests, cities and rivers that could be not as literal plans but as ways of imagining promising lives in the present world and in the world to come.

Battlefield victories and defeats are, in a very real sense, the reflection of the society waging war. Inventors and scientists, social reformers and clerics, civil rights and labor leaders, nurses and physicians, actors and directors, financiers and industrialists, economists and psychologists, artists and musicians, writers and journalists have all been soldiers on the home front. The biographical entries highlighting the subjects' wartime contributions are arranged alphabetically. Many of the entries also include suggestions for further reading.
