Pacific Visions:

Canada and Competing Indo-Pacific Visions of China and the US Kenneth M. Holland, 2024-12-13 This book describes and analyzes the choices that Canada as a Middle Power has regarding the strategic rivalry between the United States and China. The administrations of Republican Donald Trump and his successor Democrat Joe Biden have taken a hardline stance toward Beijing which in turn has adopted an increasingly belligerent tone toward Washington. The posture of the United States toward China has put traditional American allies in a difficult position. They must choose whether to join the effort to counter China's ambitions, support those ambitions, or take some intermediate stance. As one of America's closest and longest standing allies, Canada must make decisions that will affect its position in the world for the rest of the twenty-first century. The book argues that Canada's national interests are best served by alignment with the confrontational posture of the United States while at the same time joining the efforts of U.S. allies Japan, India, and South Korea to moderate the thrust of Washington's Indo-Pacific Strategy in a direction more consistent with multilateralism and the preservation of the rules-based international order. The book has important implications for other U.S. allies including the member states of the European Union, Organization of American States, and Association of Southeast Asian Nations, each of which finds itself caught in the middle between the world's two greatest powers.

Pacific Visions Michael L. Smith, 1990-08-08 In this fascinating history of California's early scientific community, Michael L. Smith looks at the careers of such earth and life scientists as John Muir, George Davidson, David Starr, and Alice Eastwood, who came to California in the nineteenth century. Smith examines the relation of these scientists to the people and terrain of their state, shows how their professional identity differed from that of scientists in the East, and traces their crucial role in the formation of American environmentalism.

Detailing the overlap of science fiction and western fiction, especially relating to their mutual interest in and concerns about frontier expansionism, he reveals an unsuspected common ground that informs the writings of both camps. Reviewing the work of many Hugo and Nebula Award winners as well as drawing upon popular film and television series like the Buck Rogers serials, Abbott's study journeys across the far reaches of science fiction's universe.
