Port and Maritime Security Jonathon P. Vesky, 2008 The terrorist attacks of September 11 2001 heightened awareness about the vulnerability to terrorist attack of all modes of transportation Port security has emerged as a significant part of the overall debate on US homeland security The overarching issues for Congress are providing oversight on current port security programs and making or responding to proposals to improve port security The US maritime system consists of more than 300 sea and river ports with more than 3 700 cargo and passenger terminals However a large fraction of maritime cargo is concentrated at a few major ports Most ships calling at US ports are foreign owned with foreign crews Container ships have been the focus of much of the attention on seaport security because they are seen as vulnerable to terrorist infiltration More than 9 million marine containers enter US ports each year While the Bureau of Customs and Border Protection CBP analyses cargo and other information to target specific shipments for closer inspection it physically inspects only a small fraction of the containers The Coast Guard and CBP are the federal agencies with the strongest presence in seaports In response to September 11 2001 the Coast Guard created the largest port security operation since World War II The Coast Guard has advanced its 24 hour Notice of Arrival NOA for ships to a 96 hour NOA The NOA allows Coast Guard officials to select high risk ships for boarding upon their arrival at the entrance to a harbor CBP has also advanced the timing of cargo information it receives from ocean carriers Through the Container Security Initiative CSI

program CBP inspectors pre screen U S bound marine containers at foreign ports of loading The Customs Trade Partnership Against Terrorism C TPAT offers importers expedited processing of their cargo if they comply with CBP measures for securing their entire supply chain To raise port security standards Congress passed the Maritime Transportation Security Act of 2002 P L 107 295 in November 2002 The focus of debate in Congress has been about whether current efforts to improve port security are adequate in addressing the threat While many agree that Coast Guard and CBP programs to address the threat are sound they contend that these programs represent only a framework for building a maritime security regime and that significant gaps in security still remain

Port Security Management Kenneth Christopher,2009-03-24 The term homeland security hardly existed before September 11 2001 yet today it dominates public policy and the economic agendas of world governments The transportation industries have been subjected to unprecedented scrutiny and regulatory mandates in recent years and the port and maritime sector are no exception Port Security Management refl

Port and Maritime Security John F. Frittelli,2003 The terrorist attacks of September 11 2001 heightened awareness about the vulnerability to terrorist attack of all modes of transportation Port security has emerged as a significant part of the overall debate on U S homeland security The U S maritime system consists of more than 300 sea and river ports with more than 3 700 cargo and passenger terminals However a large fraction of maritime cargo is concentrated at a few major ports Most ships calling at U S ports are foreign owned with foreign crews Container ships have been the focus of much of the attention on seaport security because they are particularly vulnerable to terrorist infiltration More than 6 million marine containers enter U S ports each year While the Customs Service analyses cargo information to target specific shipments for closer inspection it physically inspects only about 2 per cent of the containers This new book examines the security legislation which can have significant implications for public safety the war on terrorism the U S and global economy and federal state and local homeland security responsibilities

Protecting Our Ports Suzette R. Grillot,Rebecca J. Cruise,2016-04-08 Since the terrorist attacks of September 11 2001 there has been much discussion of the security of borders and ports of entry in the United States and around the world Ports of entry particularly sea ports are viewed as one of the most defenceless targets for a terrorist attack In response to this perceived vulnerability a number of port security initiatives have been implemented both on both a domestic and international level This timely project investigates a number of issues surrounding the container security issue It examines the scope of containerized freight security analyzes cooperation between agents in the United States and abroad explores the politics of port security and provides an assessment of 17 of the world's sea ports. The work sheds light on the container security threat and the domestic and international responses that have emerged as well as those steps that still must be taken. Interim Final Regulations on Port Security United States. Caldwell, 2011. This is a print on demand edition of a hard to find publication. An attack on ports, waterways and vessels could have a widespread impact on global trade and the economy. Within the Dept of Homeland Security, DHS component agencies have responsibility for securing the maritime environment. The Coast Guard is responsible for protecting U.S. economic and security interests in any maritime region. Customs and Border Protection is responsible for keeping terrorists and their weapons out of the U.S. securing and facilitating trade and cargo container security. This testimony discusses DHS and its component agencies' challenges: 1. strengthening risk mgmt, 2. reducing the risk of small vessel threats, 3. implementing foreign port assessments, and 4. enhancing supply chain security. Maritime Security United States Government Accountability Office, 2017-09-16. Because the safety and economic security of the United States depend in substantial part on the security of its 361 seaports, the United States has a vital national interest in maritime security. The Security and Accountability for Every Port Act (SAFE Port Act) modified existing legislation and created and codified new programs related to maritime security. The Department of Homeland Security (DHS) and its U.S. Coast Guard Transportation Security Agency and U.S. Customs and Border Protection have key maritime security responsibilities. This testimony synthesizes the results of GAO's completed work and preliminary observations from GAO's ongoing work related to the SAFE Port Act pertaining to 1. overall port security, 2. security at individual facilities, and 3. cargo container security. To perform this work, GAO visited domestic and overseas ports, reviewed agency program documents, port security plans, and post exercise reports, and interviewed officials from the federal, state, local, private, and international sectors.

Seaports Jon D. Haveman, Howard J. Shatz, 2006. Maritime Security, Progress and Challenges with Selected Port Security Programs U.S. Government Accountability Office, 2017-07-28. Ports, waterways, and vessels handle billions of dollars in cargo annually, and an attack on our nation's maritime transportation system could have dire consequences. Ports are inherently vulnerable to terrorist attacks because of their size, general proximity to metropolitan areas, the volume of cargo being processed, and their link to the global supply chain, that is, the flow of goods from manufacturers to retailers. Balancing security concerns with facilitation of the free flow of people and commerce remains an ongoing challenge for federal, state, local and private stakeholders operating in ports. Within DHS several components are responsible for port security activities. These activities include among other things promoting maritime domain awareness, conducting port facility inspections and screening incoming vessels' cargoes for the presence of contraband such as weapons of mass destruction, illicit drugs or explosives. This statement discusses progress and challenges in key areas of DHS port security programs. It is based on work GAO has previously conducted from September 2003 to September 2013 with selected updates conducted through May 2014. For these updates GAO contacted DHS officials and reviewed relevant documents.
