Starnes, 2016-12-08 This book offers a critical engagement with contemporary IR textbooks via a novel folklorist approach. Two parts of the folklorist approach are developed: addressing story structures via resemblances to two fairy tales and engaging with the role of authors via framing gestures. The book not only looks at how the idea of social science may persist in textbooks as many assumptions about what it means to study IR but also at how these assumptions are written into the defining stories textbooks tell and the possibilities for re-negotiating these stories and the boundaries of the discipline. This book will specifically engage with how the stories in textbooks constrain how it is possible to define IR through its reproduction as a social science discipline. In the first part, story structures are explored via Donkeyskin and Bluebeard stories, which the book argues resemble some structures in textbooks that define how it is permissible to tell stories about IR. In the second part, the role of authors is explored via their framing gestures within a text drawing on a number of fairy tales. By approaching the stories in textbooks alongside fairy tales, Starnes reflects back onto IR the disciplining practices in the stories textbooks tell by rendering them unfamiliar. Aiming to spark a critical conversation about the role of textbooks in defining the boundaries of what counts as IR and by extension the boundaries of the IR canon, this book is of great interest to students and scholars of international relations.

Feminist Challenges or Feminist Rhetorics? Locations, Scholarship, Discourse Kirsti Cole, 2014-03-17 The chapters collected in this book generate discussion about the intersections of feminisms and rhetorics as well as the ways in which those intersections are productive. This collection focuses on the locations of feminist rhetorics: the various discourses that invoke feminism or feminist and the scholarship that provokes challenges and deliberates issues of key concern. In focusing on challenge and location, this collection acknowledges the academic and socio-discursive spaces that feminisms and rhetorics on or about feminisms inhabit. Feminism but also women and what it means to be a woman is a signifier under siege in public discourse. The chapters included here speak to the challenges and diversities of feminist rhetoric and discourse in public and private life in the academy and in the media. The authors represented in this collection present potential consequences for communities in the academy and beyond, spanning international, geopolitical, racial, and religious contexts.

Marginal Groups and Mainstream American Culture Yolanda

Estes, 2000 They are often portrayed as outsiders: ethnic minorities, the poor, the disabled, and so many others, all living on the margins of mainstream society. Countless previous studies have focused on their pain and powerlessness, but that has done little more than sustain our preconceptions of marginalized groups. Most accounts of marginalization approach the subject from a distance and tend to overemphasize the victimization of outsiders. Taking a more intimate approach, this book reveals the personal, moral, and social implications of marginalization by drawing upon the actual experiences of such individuals. Multidisciplinary and multicultural, Identity on the Margin addresses marginalization at a variety of social levels and within many different social phenomena going beyond familiar cases dealing with race ethnicity and gender to examine such outsiders as renegade children conservative Christians and the physically and mentally disabled And because women are especially subject to the effects of marginalization feminist concerns and the marginalization of sexual practices provide a common denominator for many of the essays From problems posed by complimentary racism to the status of gays in Tony Blair s England from the struggle of Native Americans to preserve their identities to the singular problems of single mothers Identity on the Margin takes in a broad spectrum of cases to provide theoretical analysis and ethical criticism of the mechanisms of identity formation at the edges of society In all of the cases the authors demonstrate the need for theory that initiates social change by considering the ethical implications of marginalization and criticizing its harmful effects Bringing together accounts of marginalization from many different disciplines and perspectives this collection addresses a broad audience in the humanities and social sciences It offers a basis for enhancing our understanding of this process and for working toward meaningful social change
