Cultivating Professional Resilience in Direct Practice Jason M. Newell, 2017-09-26 Overwhelming empirical evidence indicates that new social workers particularly those going into child welfare or other trauma related care will discover emotional challenges including the indirect or secondary effects of the trauma work itself professional burnout and compassion fatigue However the newly revised CSWE Educational Policy and Accreditation Standards EPAS does not mandate the inclusion of content related to self care in social work curriculum or field education In a textbook that bridges the gap between theoretical and pragmatic approaches to this important issue in human service work Jason M Newell provides a potential resolution by conceptualizing self care as an ongoing and holistic set of practice behaviors described as the key to professional resilience To address the effects of trauma related care on direct practitioners Newell provides a comprehensive competency based model for professional resilience examining four key constructs stress empathy resilience and self care from a range of theoretical dimensions For those who work with vulnerable populations the tendency to frame self care solely within organizational context overlooks the importance of self care in domains beyond the agency setting Alternatively he uses a framework grounded in the ecological systems perspective conceptualizing self care as a broader set of practice behaviors pertaining to the whole person including the physical interpersonal organizational familial and spiritual domains of the psychosocial self Alongside professional self care practices at the organizational level Newell makes a case for the pragmatic role of recreational activities time with family and friends physical health spirituality and mindfulness The application of a comprehensive approach to self care practice has potential to empower practitioners to remain resilient and committed to the values mission and spirit of the social work profession in the face of trauma The Nurse Practitioner

,1997 The Art and Science of Mindfulness Shauna L. Shapiro,Linda E. Carlson,2009 Intention is fundamental to any project endeavor or journey Related to intention is the concept of mindfulness the awareness that arises through intentionally attending to oneself and others in an open accepting and discerning way Drawing from Buddhist teachings and psychological theory authors Shapiro and Carlson explore why mindful awareness is integral to the therapeutic healing process Their book integrates the art and science of mindfulness to inspire greater well being in both clinicians and their patients As such mindfulness is understood as a universal human capacity that can help bridge the gap between therapist and patient reminding us that we are all human beings aspiring to greater health happiness and freedom from suffering Publisher description Integrative Medicine: Principles for Practice Benjamin Kligler,Roberta Anne Lee,2012-09-01
