Ward Howe,2015-07-07 Excerpt from Masterpieces of American Eloquence Christian Herald Selection The historians of antiquity attached so much importance to the utterances of the great men of whom they wrote that they were fain to make such report as they could of the orations pronounced by these personages on occasions of public interest Where full knowledge in this regard was unattainable the historians themselves it is supposed composed such addresses as such men under the given circumstances would have been likely to make The orations of Demosthenes and Cicero have indeed been preserved for us in their entirety and continue to this day to hold an important place in Greek and Latin classics In addition to these Thucydides Livy and Tacitus hand down to us many eloquent sentences which may have been correctly even if imperfectly reported Nothing indeed can bring the people of other times so much within the comprehension of later generations as can the record of what their eminent men were moved to say in the great crises of their public life The Latin proverb tells us that Verba volant Littera scripta manet But in the recorded orations the flying word is made to remain the fleeting impression reproduces itself we live for the moment the life of days long vanished As Americans we have especial occasion to feel an interest in the volume herewith presented Eloquence does much to build up the life of free peoples The words uttered by patriots in our early history were prophetic of the destiny of a Nation fated to play a new part in the great drama of the world's record The indignant protest of James Otis against the Writs of Assistance imposed upon the Colonies by the Mother Country the burning words of Patrick Henry from which fugitive slaves in our own time have taken to themselves the sentence Give me liberty or give me death the weighty utterances of Samuel Adams Alexander Hamilton and Thomas Jefferson do they not bring back to us the very walls within which the fateful pleadings were made About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Masterpieces of American eloquence ,1900 Masterpieces of American Eloquence Julia Ward Howe,2016-05-18 This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it This work was reproduced from the original artifact and remains as true to the original work as possible Therefore you will see the original copyright references library stamps as most of these works have been housed in our most important libraries around the world and other notations in the work This work is in the public domain in the United States of America and possibly other nations Within the United States you may freely copy and distribute this work as no entity individual or corporate has a copyright on the body of the work As a reproduction of a historical artifact this work may contain missing or blurred pages poor pictures errant marks etc Scholars believe and we concur that this work is important enough to be preserved reproduced and made generally available to the public We appreciate your support of the preservation process and thank you for being an important part of keeping this knowledge alive and relevant
