Husserl on Depiction Regina-Nino Mion, Claudio Rozzoni, John B. Brough, 2025-05-30 The publication of Husserliana XXIII Phantasie Bildbewusstsein Erinnerung in 1980 and John B Brough's translation of it in 2005 increased interest in Edmund Husserl's philosophy of depiction. This volume is the first comprehensive book collection in English that provides a systematic reading of Husserl's theory of depictive image consciousness. The book explains the meaning of various concepts in Husserl's philosophy of depiction such as Bildobjekt, Vergegenw^{rt}igung, Perzeption, and examines the range and limits of the application of Husserl's depictive image consciousness to various art practices and media and to other mental acts e.g. phantasy, memory. The book discusses among other topics empathy, symbolic presentation, and the aesthetic experience of depictions. Additionally, the book compares Husserl's theory of depiction with that of other philosophers notably Franz Brentano, Jean Paul Sartre, Maurice Merleau-Ponty, Roman Ingarden, Leopold Blaustein, and Jean Baudrillard. Husserl on Depiction will be of interest to scholars and advanced students working in phenomenology, philosophy of perception, philosophy of art, aesthetics, and pictorial representation. Veissière, Marina M. Doucerain, 2022-02-02 The Future of Correctional Rehabilitation Ronen Ziv, 2017-08-23 In the aftermath of Martinson's 1974 "nothing works" doctrine scholars have made a concerted effort to develop an evidence-based corrections theory and practice to show what works to change offenders. Perhaps the most important contribution to this effort was made by a group of Canadian psychologists most notably Donald Andrews, James Bonta, and Paul Gendreau who developed a treatment paradigm called the Risk Need Responsivity (RNR) model which became the dominant theory of correctional treatment. This approach was more recently challenged by a perspective developed by Tony Ward, Shadd Maruna, and others called the Good Lives Model (GLM). Based in part on desistance research and positive psychology, this model proposes to rehabilitate offenders by building on the strengths offenders possess. GLM proponents see the RNR model as a deficit model that fixes dynamic risk factors rather than identifying what offenders value most and using these positive factors to pull them out of crime. Through a detailed examination of both models' theoretical and correctional frameworks, The Future of Correctional Rehabilitation: Moving Beyond the RNR Model and Good Lives Model Debate probes the extent to which the models offer incompatible or compatible approaches to offender treatment and suggests how to integrate the RNR and GLM approaches to build a new and hopefully more effective vision for offender treatment. A foreword by renowned criminologist Francis T. Cullen helps put the material into context. This book will be of much interest to scholars and students studying correctional rehabilitation as well as practitioners working with offenders.

Information Cosmopolitics Edin Tabak, 2015-03-19 Information Cosmopolitics explores interaction between nationalist and information sharing practices in academic communities with a view to understanding the potential impacts of these interactions. This book is also a resounding critique of existing theories and methods as well as the launching point for the proposition of an alternate approach. Dominant approaches in the Information Behaviour (IB) field are investigated as well as questions existing theoretical approaches to nationalism and cosmopolitanism. The concept of information cosmopolitics is introduced as an approach for tracing information practices and enabling research participants to perform their own narratives and positionings and that the focus of information studies should be on tracing the continuous circulation of processes of individualisation and collectivization. Provides an alternative to the dominant approaches in the field of Information Behaviour. Offers a novel theoretical model to trace information practices. Questions existing approaches to nationalism and cosmopolitanism.
