Modelling Forest Development Forestry Sciences:

Modelling Forest Development Klaus von Gadow, Gangying Hui, 2013-12-01 In an Ulffianaged woodland forest development follows a succession of periods of undisturbed natural growth interrupted by intermediate loss or damage of trees caused by fire or wind or other natural hazards In a managed woodland the most important periodic disturbances are the thinning operations which are often carried out at regular intervals and which usually have a significant effect on the future evolution of the resource Thus a realistic model of forest development includes both natural growth and thinnings The key to successful timber management is a proper understanding of growth processes and one of the objectives of modelling forest development is to provide the tools that enable foresters to compare alternative silvicultural treatments Foresters need to be able to anticipate the consequences of a particular thinning operation In most cases total timber volume is not a very appropriate measure for quantifying growth or yields or changes caused by thinning operations Yield in economic terms is defined by the dimensions and quality attributes of the harvestable logs and estimating timber products is a central issue of production oriented growth and yield research Introduction 2 Growth modelling is also an essential prerequisite for evaluating the consequences of a particular management action on the future development of an important natural resource such as a woodland ecosystem

Forest Growth and Timber Quality: Crown Models and Simulation Methods for Sustainable Forest Management Dennis P. Dykstra, 2010-10 Explores the relationships between forest management activities and timber quality Sessions were organized to explore models and simulation methodologies that contribute to an understanding of tree development over time and the ways that management and harvesting activities can influence the quality of timber products recovered from those trees Five keynote addresses 29 plenary presentations and 16 poster presentations covered the full breadth of forest growth and timber quality issues related to forest management These proceedings comprise 19 papers based on presentations and posters plus 28 abstracts for presentations Also includes abstracts and slides from the presentations prepared by three keynote speakers Illustrations
