Sinjab, 2011-10-26 This book designed for ophthalmologists and particularly for refractive surgeons aims to develop practical and clinical skills in readers so that they are able to make the right decisions in managing keratoconus There are four main chapters The first is devoted to diagnosis and describes the clinical signs the appearances on microscopy and the significance of corneal hysteresis and corneal topography Classifications and patterns of keratoconus are then presented and the author offers his own new classification of topographic patterns The third chapter addresses the management of the disease in detail Both non interventional and interventional approaches are discussed with due attention to contraindications and complications In addition a novel classification of management parameters is suggested and a systematic approach to management formulated In the final chapter this approach is applied to nine cases that serve as clinical examples Biofilm Associated Livestock Diseases and their Management Dibyajit Lahiri, Moupriya Nag, Debasmita Bhattacharya, Rina Rani Ray, 2025-04-08 The book discusses biofilms and adherent communities of microorganisms that play a significant role in livestock associated infections It explores the characteristics formation and consequences of biofilms in various livestock species and explains their involvement in diseases like mastitis Johne s disease caseous lymphadenitis and more It also explains intricate aspects of biofilm related challenges such as virulence antibiotic resistance quorum sensing and inter species communication The book then explores the strategies for combatting biofilm associated infections encompassing phytomedicines novel antimicrobials and nanomedicines This book serves as a great resource for researchers veterinary practitioners and students by addressing these critical issues and providing a comprehensive understanding of biofilm dynamics in livestock infections fostering improved diagnosis and treatment methodologies Leibniz: A Contribution to the Archaeology of Power Stephen Connelly,2021-01-05 Connelly demonstrates how Leibniz s rearticulation of power and its associated concepts is motivated at least in part by the struggles that marked the terrain in which his ideas were rooted the struggle between Reformed and Scholastic theology between natural law and natural right and between mechanistic natural philosophy and human freedom He locates Leibniz within power s wider evolution and shows how the universal jurisprudence which Leibniz developed between the 1660s and 1690s can be considered as a transformative encounter between power activity and modality Drawing on thinkers as diverse as Aristotle Aquinas Duns Scotus Grotius Husserl and Deleuze Connelly traces Leibniz s conceptualisation of power through its applications in his legal texts revealing that Leibniz in fact reconceptualises power under a new name the state space The move amounts to an internalisation of power as a moral world within each individual submitting each practical agent to a universal set of obligations and prohibitions defined by that world What though is at stake in bringing the objective world within each individual and submitting it to a public legal order And what is the significance of this surgical intervention for any archaeology of power

Freedom, Nature, and World Peter Loftson,2008-01-31 Freedom Nature and World is a collection of essays by Peter Loftson which examine issues posed by a broadly naturalistic view of the world which Loftson defends while also exploring some of the challenges it confronts Papers on freedom Kant Christianity Homer the history of analytic philosophy the place of humanity in nature and other topics are brought together within a synoptically naturalistic purview All the essays rest on and in some cases extend that synoptic perspective which seeks to encompass both a scientific understanding of humankind in the natural world and the complexities of free rational agency within our cultural and historical settings Published in English authors The Journal of Advanced Therapeutics, 1914 It Could Have Been Otherwise Hester Gelber, 2004-06-01 This volume deals with the Dominicans at Oxford University from 1300-1350. It describes the history of the Oxford friary, who the friars were, who were there, how they were chosen, and the intellectual life they created. It develops the idea of the friary as a conversational community. The theology of four friars is dealt with in depth: Hugh of Lawton, Arnold of Strelley, William Crathorn, and Robert Holcot, relying often on unedited manuscript sources. The focus is on their response to the modal theory of Duns Scotus and Ockham. Discussions of necessity, contingency, divine foreknowledge, a deceiver God, invincible ignorance, and God's absolute power are highly ingenious. Several develop an obligational theology based on the technique of obligational debate.
