Multinational Firms in the World Economy Giorgio Barba Navaretti, Anthony J. Venables, 2020-06-16 Depending on one s point of view multinational enterprises are either the heroes or the villains of the globalized economy Governments compete fiercely for foreign direct investment by such companies but complain when firms go global and move their activities elsewhere Multinationals are seen by some as threats to national identities and wealth and are accused of riding roughshod over national laws and of exploiting cheap labor However the debate on these companies and foreign direct investment is rarely grounded on sound economic arguments This book brings clarity to the debate With the contribution of other leading experts Giorgio Barba Navaretti and Anthony Venables assess the determinants of multinationals actions investigating why their activity has expanded so rapidly and why some countries have seen more such activity than others They analyze their effects on countries that are recipients of inward investments and on those countries that see multinational firms moving jobs abroad The arguments are made using modern advances in economic analysis a case study and by drawing on the extensive empirical literature that assesses the determinants and consequences of activity by multinationals The treatment is rigorous yet accessible to all readers with a background in economics whether students or professionals Drawing out policy implications the authors conclude that multinational enterprises are generally a force for the promotion of prosperity in the world economy Multinational Corporations and Spillovers Magnus Blomström, Ari Kokko, 1996 Multinational Corporations and the Third World Som Deo, 1986 Investing in Development Theodore Harvey Moran, Excellent and exceptionally timely Foreign Affairs This volume surveys current views in the debate about the impact of foreign direct investment on Third World development on growth employment exports technology and distribution of income It examines whether the efforts of less developed countries to attract and control multinational corporations have constituted a serious distortion of trade that threatens jobs in the home nations It provides new studies of foreign investment in agriculture and in the least developed states It looks at the threat of transmitting environmental pollution And it analyzes the link between international companies and the umbrella of World Bank cofinancing as a mechanism to reduce risk Finally it attempts to estimate how much of the gap in commercial bank lending might plausibly be filled by direct corporate investment over the
