News Reporters And News Sources:

News and News Sources Paul Manning, 2000-12-22 News and News Sources offers a fresh introduction to the sociology of news. It is often suggested that the powerful dominate news agendas. Increasingly, however, less powerful groups are employing sophisticated media strategies and new communication technologies to get their message across. The implications of this development are unclear. Do these developments herald a democratisation of news arenas or will they enable the powerful to further strengthen their control over the flow of information to the public domain? News and News Sources reviews new research in the rapidly expanding field of political communication, drawing upon material from Britain, Europe, and the USA. It provides a clear introduction to the processes of news production and the implications of the rise in global electronic news communication and assesses the various theoretical frameworks available for analysing these developments, including functionalism, pluralism, Marxism, political economy, hegemony theory, discourse theory, and postmodernism. Resources in Education, 1988
