NEWSWORKERS AND NEWSMAKERS

A Study in News Use

DAVID L. ALTHEIDE

News, and especially TV news, is the most widespread source of public information in our society today (Roper Organization, 1971). This realization has encouraged social scientists to examine the news process. The pioneering studies of news by Park (1940), Hughes (1940), White (1950), and Breed (1955) showed news to be an organizational product and not a mirror of some objective reality. This point has been further emphasized in research by Cohen and Young (1973), Epstein (1973), Tuchman (1969, 1972, 1974), Molotch and Lester (1974, 1975), and Roschco (1975). This paper pursues this line of reasoning but shows that: (1) the uses of news by assemblers (newsworkers) and promoters (newsmakers) is negotiated and variable, and (2) news is used by all parties to the news process. The point is not merely that news depends on practical perspectives, and that these may differ, but that as a cultural idea, "news" is a legitimizing term for a range of interests. Persons assigned to work on news programs have a different use for news than those

Newsmakers 03 Issue 3:

NGOs as Newsmakers Matthew Powers, 2018-05-15 As traditional news outlets international coverage has waned several prominent nongovernmental organizations have taken on a growing number of seemingly journalistic functions. Groups such as Amnesty International, Human Rights Watch and Médecins Sans Frontières send reporters to gather information and provide analysis and assign photographers and videographers to boost the visibility of their work. Digital technologies and social media have increased the potential for NGOs to communicate directly with the public bypassing traditional gatekeepers. But have these efforts changed and expanded traditional news practices and coverage and are there consequences to blurring the lines between reporting and advocacy? In NGOs as Newsmakers Matthew Powers analyzes the growing role NGOs play in shaping and sometimes directly producing international news. Drawing on interviews, observations and content analysis, he charts the dramatic growth in NGO news making efforts, examines whether these efforts increase the organizations' chances of garnering news coverage and analyzes the effects of digital technologies on publicity strategies. Although the contemporary media environment offers NGOs greater opportunities to shape the news, Powers finds it also subjects them to news media norms. While advocacy groups can and do provide coverage of otherwise ignored places and topics, they are still dependent on traditional media and political elites and influenced by the expectations of donors, officials, journalists and NGOs themselves. Through an unprecedented glimpse into NGOs' newsmaking efforts, Powers portrays the possibilities and limits of NGOs as newsmakers amid the transformations of international news with important implications for the intersections of journalism and advocacy.

An Epidemic of Rumors Jon D. Lee, 2014-03-15 In An Epidemic of Rumors, Jon D. Lee examines the human response to epidemics through the lens of the 2003 SARS epidemic. Societies usually respond to the eruption of disease by constructing stories, jokes, conspiracy theories, legends and rumors, but these narratives are often more damaging than the diseases they reference. The information disseminated through them is often inaccurate, incorporating xenophobic explanations of the disease's origins and questionable medical information about potential cures and treatment. Folklore studies brings important and useful perspectives to understanding cultural responses to the outbreak of disease. Through this etiological study, Lee shows the similarities between the narratives of the SARS outbreak and the narratives of other contemporary disease outbreaks like AIDS and the H1N1 virus. His analysis suggests that these disease narratives do not spring up with new outbreaks or diseases but are in continuous circulation and are recycled opportunistically. Lee also explores whether this predictability of vernacular disease narratives presents the opportunity to create counter narratives released systematically from the government or medical science to stymie the negative effects of the fearful rumors that so often inflame humanity With potential for practical application to public health and health policy An Epidemic of Rumors will be of interest to students and scholars of health medicine and folklore New York Magazine, 1982-06-14 New York magazine was born in 1968 after a run as an insert of the New York Herald Tribune and quickly made a place for itself as the trusted resource for readers across the country With award winning writing and photography covering everything from politics and food to theater and fashion the magazine's consistent mission has been to reflect back to its audience the energy and excitement of the city itself while celebrating New York as both a place and an idea New York Magazine, 1982-08-09 New York magazine was born in 1968 after a run as an insert of the New York Herald Tribune and quickly made a place for itself as the trusted resource for readers across the country With award winning writing and photography covering everything from politics and food to theater and fashion the magazine's consistent mission has been to reflect back to its audience the energy and excitement of the city itself while celebrating New York as both a place and an idea New York Magazine, 1984-05-14 New York magazine was born in 1968 after a run as an insert of the New York Herald Tribune and quickly made a place for itself as the trusted resource for readers across the country With award winning writing and photography covering everything from politics and food to theater and fashion the magazine's consistent mission has been to reflect back to its audience the energy and excitement of the city itself while celebrating New York as both a place and an idea New York Magazine, 1982-05-24 New York magazine was born in 1968 after a run as an insert of the New York Herald Tribune and quickly made a place for itself as the trusted resource for readers across the country With award winning writing and photography covering everything from politics and food to theater and fashion the magazine's consistent mission has been to reflect back to its audience the energy and excitement of the city itself while celebrating New York as both a place and an idea Newsmakers' Sub Thomson Gale, 2003-02 Newsmakers provide informative profiles of the world's most interesting people Business Publication Advertising Source, 2006 The Indexer, 1972 New York Magazine, 1981-12-21 New York magazine was born in 1968 after a run as an insert of the New York Herald Tribune and quickly made a place for itself as the trusted resource for readers across the country With award winning writing and photography covering everything from politics and food to theater and fashion the magazine's consistent mission has been to reflect back to its audience the energy and excitement of the city itself while celebrating New York as both a place and an idea Bowker's News Media Directory 2007 CSA Journal Staff, 2006-09 Newsmakers Sub Cumulation Newsmakers, 2003-08 Children's Magazine Guide, 2002 Newsmakers Laura Avery, 2005-11 Provides timely and informative profiles of the world's most interesting people Patterns, 1986 Automotive News, 2004 Engineering News and American Contract Journal, 2003 Index de Périodiques Canadiens, 2002 Editor & Publisher Newspaper Data Book, 2003
