Franca Jamieson's company will try to marry convenient helicopter travel with 'enjoyable golf, fine dining and beautiful scenery'

By DON FRASER

In Niagara's burgeoning scene of high-end wine, golf and luxury cuisine, the sky's the limit for a new company.

And Franca Jamieson wants to take people there.

Jamieson is the owner of Niagara Helicopter Inc., which conducts its helicopter service through Niagara Helicopters Ltd.

She said her mission is to marry convenience with "enjoyable golf, fine dining and beautiful scenery."

Helicopter tour packages to Niagara and other destinations are not unique in the region. Two-year-old Skyway Helicopters Inc. is the Niagara District Airport, for instance, also does tours to scenic wine-viewing hubs in Pelham, Hamilton, Brantford and, in the past, the Royal Niagara Golf Club.

But Jamieson says her Niagara Helicopters company, launched in June, offers its own twist to the game.

"We're going to be providing optimum luxury services with these golf packages," she said. "And here, the wine and top cuisine is what we want to be known for."

Jamieson is completing her last year as a senior immigration officer with Citizenship and Immigration Canada and plans to devote her investment energies to her new company.

It's a natural fit, says the 55-year-old Niagara Falls resident.

"I've been dealing with people and every facet of a person's travelling for 20 years."

She has also been affiliated with the U.S.-based Club Corp. of America — a large organization of recreational private golf clubs — and has played at a number of them.

"I've met people that play golf. I know how they spend when they're golfing."

Her first business began about 10 years ago, when, as a friend of a local golfer, she decided to launch a helicopter service with her brother-in-law.

"I told him, 'This is the age of everything-comes-and-goes,'" she said. "And I believe he has the most reputation."

Now, she says, she is a "millionaire" in the golf world. "I'm doing it for something different," said Jamieson.

"Let's take them up by helicopter and land them on the golf course — that would be really prestigious."

On the day of the interview, the helicopter she built was stuck in one machine repair after another, mired in the asphalt. The five-foot-six in height and her pilot will be contacted via by the new company.

Niagara Helicopters is also in the midst of remodeling. A new facility is under construction that will house a reception, sales, wine, offices and other items.

Using the Niagara Helicopters helipad on Victoria Avenue as a base, Niagara Helicopter will offer tours from Toronto Island and Niagara to premier courses in the region and elsewhere in Ontario.

Right now, that roster includes the Royal Niagara Golf Club, Pinery Lakes, Legends on the Niagara and Hunter Pointe Golf Course.

Arrangements have been made with the clubs to ensure clients will be the only ones arriving that day by helicopter.

It's a new venue she came to Helicopter, he said, seems designed to attract the kind of upscale market the club was seeking.

Jamieson's company will also coordinate flexible helicopter pick-up spots and organize designer packages based on the desires of the client.

Right now, she's advertising in newspapers and golf magazines and hopes to extend that to wine and food publications.

"We've had a lot of inquiries. I've been doing a lot of quotes," she said. "For one-day and two-day packages we are affiliated with Wolford's Hunter and Pinery Lakes Ridge wineries, where our clients will dine. Helicopter golf tours in Muskoka are also being offered."

"Given it's an upscale tour, they're going to have the best," she said. "It's a complete dinner and they have their own private dining rooms."

For example, the one-day Niagara tour to the Elton Abbey Golf Course in Oakville begins with clients being picked up by limo at their homes and taken to the helipad.
