

Aims to Reform Health-care

U.S. Health Secretary aims to reform health-care system, including Medicare and Medicaid, to reduce costs and improve quality of care.

Commissioner of the U.S. Social Security Administration, Michael R. Miller, announced today that he will lead a new commission to study the future of the U.S. Social Security system.

The commission will be led by Miller, who has served as the U.S. Social Security Administration's commissioner since 2010. He will be joined by a group of experts, including former U.S. Social Security Administration commissioners, to study the future of the U.S. Social Security system.

The commission will be charged with studying the future of the U.S. Social Security system, including the impact of demographic changes, the need for reform, and the potential for a new system.

Miller said the commission will be a "high-level, non-partisan" group that will provide the U.S. Social Security Administration with a comprehensive report on the future of the system.
