

The background of the slide is a photograph of a stack of old, leather-bound books and several loose papers or photographs scattered on a surface. The lighting is soft and warm, creating a scholarly or historical atmosphere. The text is overlaid on a dark, semi-transparent rectangular area in the upper half of the image.

Excerpt from Outspoken Essays Second Series

It is always difficult to choose a title for a book of essays and it seemed most convenient to repeat the name of the little volume which was published three years ago Those essays were in part a challenge to certain idols of the market place and theatre and I thought it legitimate to mark the purpose or tendency of the book on the title page But I have no wish to pose as a prophet crying in the wilderness The events of the last few years have it is to be hoped taught something both to my critics and to myself they have perhaps even brought us nearer together In any case the present volume contains nothing very daring or unconventional and if it had stood alone I should have chosen a less provocative title About the Publisher

The greater part of the book consists of hitherto unpublished matter

Confessio Fidei is an attempt to put in order what I actually believe and to explain why I believe it I shall be classified I suppose as belonging to the right wing of theological liberalism But I prefer to call myself a Christian Platonist and to claim a humble place in the long chain of Christian thinkers whose philosophy is based on the Platonic tradition That chain has been unbroken from the first century to our own day and in English theology it has had a very honourable record It should I think be recognised as a third school of thought in the Church not less legitimate nor less productive of good fruits than the Catholic and Protestant parties which in ecclesiastical politics are so much more active and prominent

The Hibbert Lectures were delivered at Oxford in 1920 the subject was suggested to me by my friend Dr Jacks
