The Perception of Pictures Margaret A. Hagen, 2014-05-10 Durer s Devices

Beyond the Projective Model of Pictures is a collection of papers that discusses the nature of picture making and perception. One paper presents a perceptual theory of pictorial representation in which cultural and historical options in styles of depiction that appear to be different are actually closely related perceptually. Another paper discusses pictorial functions and perceptual structures including pictorial representation, perceptual theory, flat canvass and the deep world. One paper suggests that perception can be more a matter of information made up than picked up. Light becomes somewhat informative and the eye correspondingly becomes less or more presumptive. Another paper notes that human vision is transformed by our modes of representation that image formation can be essentially incomplete, false or misleading primarily as regards dramatic performance and pictorial representation. One paper makes three claims that 1 the blind have untapped depiction abilities, 2 haptics involving the sense of touch have an intuitive sense of perspective and 3 depiction is perceptual based on graphic elements and pictorial configurations. The collection is suitable for psychologists, physiologists, psychophysicists and researchers in human perception or phenomenology. Public Health Service Publication, General Hospitals and Nursing Homes Jerry Alan Solon, United States.
