Diversity in Family Formation Joop de Beer, F. Deven, 2013-03-09 The aim of Diversity in Family Formation is to examine changes in the start of the family formation process Rather than giving a rough overview of demographic changes in many countries a comparison of differences in changes in family formation and fertility behaviour between Belgium and The Netherlands is interesting for various reasons First even though the economic and cultural differences between these countries are relatively small there is one important difference Belgium is predominantly Catholic whereas The Netherlands has about equal proportions of Catholics and Protestants Second if the Second Demographic Transition implies that there is one common pattern of change in different European countries and that differences across countries are due to the fact that countries are in a different stage of the transition process and if it is assumed that the transition process started earlier in Protestant countries than in Catholic countries one would expect The Netherlands to be in a further stage of the transition process than Belgium Thus an in depth comparison of changes in family formation and fertility behaviour between both countries may give us more insight in the question of whether there is one common transition process The comparison of fertility and family survey data in both countries brings us to the core question of whether there is one common explanation for differences between countries in various types of fertility and family behaviour under consideration namely fertility regulation the choice of living arrangement after leaving the parental home and the labour force participation of mothers     The Catholic Marriage Manual George Anthony Kelly,1958     Transitions to Adulthood in Europe M. Corijn,Erik Klijzing,2013-06-29 The diversification in family practices constitutes a major theme of research in the field of population studies A substantial part of these diversification processes are linked to the stage of family formation The increase in non marital cohabitation and non marital fertility and the postponement of marriage and parenthood have particularly characterised the transition from youth to adulthood among the post war cohorts In studying the transition from youth to adulthood the timing of events is crucial Different timing patterns are the product of the interplay between a multitude of factors in the institutional as well as the personal context In this respect cross country comparative research is a powerful tool to understand the determinants of the change processes To move beyond the mere description of the changes is a challenge that not only is eminently scientific it also gives the necessary insights to grasp the implications of the changes for policy From this policy perspective the postponement of the integration into adulthood has major societal consequences such as the very low fertility and the fact that the family formation itself became a matter of choice Over the years the Population and Family Studies Centre CBGS a scientific institute of the Flemish Community has intensively investigated these changes constituting the Second Demographic Transition not only through national but through cross national comparative research     Population and Development: Challenges and Opportunities Anatoly G.
