Boring Postcards USA

Martin Parr,2004-03-01 In Boring PostcardsMagnum photographer and postcard enthusiast Martin Parr brought together 160 of the dullest postcards of 1950s 60s and 70s Britain to make a book that was contrary to the conceit of its title both fascinating and extremely funny It was one of those ideas that seemed so obvious that no one could believe it hadn t been done before and it caught the public imagination in a big way In Britain Boring Postcardswas discussed everywhere from daytime TV shows to art and design magazines from local newspapers and radio stations outraged that their town should be labelled boring to Timemagazine Now Parr has turned his attention to the USA for a new book of Boring Postcards Just as before for a postcard to qualify as sufficiently boring either its composition its content or the characters featured must be arguably boring or the photograph must be absent of anything that might conventionally be described as interesting As the study of postcards becomes a field of academic interest this book offers more than amusement as a folk art recording of the non places and non events of post war America it reveals poignant insights into its social cultural and architectural values

Postcards Martin Parr,2008 This book is the comprehensive account of Martin Parrs unique postcard collection Featuring 650 cards selected by Parr from his collection of over 20 000 cards built over 30 years its contents are presented in the manner of a postcard album A highly entertaining journey into the themes of Parrworld it is also a serious study of postcard history through the 20th century Presented in 20 chronologically sequenced chapters the book opens with British postcards from the beginning of the century made to mark notable local news events such as car crashes murders lightning strikes and acts of suffragette vandalism It continues through the elaborate story telling postcards ofWGothard whose Barnsley studio commemorated mining and shipping disasters a collection on incidents ofWorldWar I from scenes of bombing to celebrations ofwar heroes novelty portrait postcards from the 1920s and 1930s bizarre hand coloured cards from the 1930s and the holiday postcards of John Hinde that so influenced Parrs own photographic style The book ends in Boring Postcards territory with a selection of late 20th century postcards promoting newmotorways airports and shops Parrworld Martin Parr,2008

Parrworld: Postcards Martin Parr,2008 Introduction to Postcards by Thomas Weski Introduction to Objects by Martin Parr Picturing the Postcard Monica Cure,2018-12-18 The first full length study of a once revolutionary visual and linguistic medium Literature has died many times this book tells the story of its death by postcard Picturing the Postcard looks to this unlikely source to shed light on our collective modern day obsession with new media The postcard almost unimaginably now produced at the end of the nineteenth century the same anxieties and hopes that many people think are unique to twenty first century social media such as Facebook or Twitter It promised a newly connected social world accessible to all and threatened the breakdown of authentic social relations and even of language Arguing that new media is as much a discursive object as a material one and that it is always in dialogue with the media that came before it Monica

Cure reconstructs the postcard's history through journals legal documents and sources from popular culture analyzing the postcard's representation in fiction by well known writers such as E M Forster and Edith Wharton and by more obscure writers like Anne Sedgwick and Herbert Flowerdew. Writers deployed uproar over the new medium of the postcard by Anglo American cultural critics to mirror anxieties about the changing nature of the literary marketplace which included the new role of women in public life the appeal of celebrity and the loss of privacy an increasing dependence on new technologies and the rise of mass media. Literature kept open the postcard's possibilities and in the process reimagined what literature could be.

Postcards David Prochaska, Jordana Mendelson, 2010 Examines postcards as images that are carriers of text and textual correspondence that circulate images across boundaries of class gender nationality and race. Discusses issues concerning the concrete practices of production consumption collection and appropriation.

Post Ex Sub Dis Ghent Urban Studies Team, 2002 Post ex sub and dis these are but a few of the prefixes that have been used to compose neologisms for describing the contemporary cityscape. Terms such as posturban space postsuburbia exurbia and disurbia are part of a dizzying collection of often hotly contested labels. This plethora demonstrates how difficult it has become to name map and analyse the cityscape. Urban environments have come to evince a radically chaotic and fragmented structure. This book explores how fragmentation has acquired new meanings and how the urban landscape is constantly being deconstructed and reconstructed. Richly illustrated with works by artists and photographers the volume contains a series of essays on spatial social and cultural issues written by distinguished scholars from an unusual variety of disciplines.

Walker Evans and the Picture Postcard Jeff Rosenheim, Walker Evans, Metropolitan Museum of Art (New York, N.Y.), 2009 Sketchbook volume one of a two volume set documents the best of the optical illusions discovered and sketched in our CAD system. It is also attempts to define common visual attributes and categorize optical illusions by those features. The goal is give the reader new tools to help them better identify and classify optical illusions. These illusions are used by engineers academics and artists to graphically depict their ideas and the world around them on flat surfaces.
