Marquesan Societies Nicholas Thomas,1990

Marquesan society has long captured the interest of European observers in part because of unfamiliar institutions such as polyandry However due to complex and destructive historical changes and the very scattered nature of early source materials the distinctive Marquesan developments of Polynesian society have been obscure and at odds with anthropologists and historians overall understanding of Pacific societies Nicholas Thomas s book based on a critical study of the fullest possible range of sources is the first to provide a clear account of early Marquesan social relations and culture and as such will become a key source for Pacific scholars However Dr Thomas s discussion is not restricted to ethnohistoric documentation His analysis of dynamic and highly fluid society and its encounters with early European visitors and traders encompasses wider debates about the nature of gender relations in Polynesian societies small scale hierarchical structures cultural transformation and longer term change In linking specific features of early Marquesan society its contact with foreigners and the longer term transformations of eastern Polynesian societies Dr Thomas offers Pacific studies a distinctive new perspective

Tiki Elena Govor,Nicholas Thomas,2019-03-26 Created across the six islands of a remote archipelago in eastern Polynesia the art of the Marquesas is one of the world s most distinctive and remarkable art traditions Though exhibited in major museums around the world Marquesan art is nevertheless poorly understood and the formation of collections still largely unresearched This book documents and explores the most extensive early collection from the archipelago In May 1804 participants in the first Russian voyage round the world usually known as the Krusenstern expedition after the principal commander spent twelve days at the island of Nuku Hiva Inspired by the science and collecting associated with the voyages of Captain James Cook the mariners interacted with Islanders and made extensive collections of artifacts While the lives of the collectors and exchanges among scientists led to these artifacts being widely dispersed the research reported here has identified some 200 objects collected during the voyage which are now in museums in Russia Estonia Germany Switzerland and the Netherlands The outcome of years of work in museum stores and archives Tiki reassembles a collection of exceptional importance A set of essays contextualize these precisely provenanced artifacts historically and in the life and environment of the Marquesas Islands For the first time this heritage is made accessible to Islanders themselves and to interested scholars and curators

Photo-identification of Melon-headed Whales (Peponocephala Electra) in the Marquesas Islands John Ralph McClung (II),2017 For many species of oceanic dolphins photo identification and genetic data indicate that these island associated populations are demographically isolated from pelagic populations and that island associated populations exhibit very different patterns of movement and habitat use Melon headed whales Peponocephala electra are generally considered a pelagic dolphin but have been documented around oceanic islands where deep water occurs close to shore In the main

Hawaiian Islands for example analysis of ten years of photo identification data shows that melon headed whales form a relatively small and apparently isolated population Melon headed whales have also been documented around several islands in the Marquesas archipelago of French Polynesia but no information on their population structure in the islands exists To better understand this population of melon headed whale I analyzed over 6 000 photographs collected during Expedition Marquesas a series of small boat sampling surveys conducted around six islands Hiva Oa Tahuata Mohotani Ua Huka Ua Pou and Nuku Hiva in March and April of 2012 Photographs and biopsy samples were collected during 14 encounters with melon headed whales at four of the islands Mohotani Ua Huka Ua Pou and Nuku Hiva In this thesis I compiled the first photo identification catalog for melon headed whales in the islands by analyzing photographs to identify individual dolphins based on distinctive markings to their dorsal fins referred to as distinctively marked individuals or DMIs In total 393 DMIs were identified and sightings were reconciled within encounters between encounters and between islands to construct sighting histories for each DMI This information was then used to improve upon visual counts of the number of individuals in encountered groups to investigate inter island movement of DMIs and to provide a minimum abundance of melon headed whales in the islands Estimates of the number of individuals in resting groups were obtained by incorporating information on the number of quality images of each DMI and the total number of quality non DMI images collected within an encounter into the Poisson lognormal mark resight model PNE The PNE estimates were then compared to visual counts of the number of melon headed whales in encountered groups obtained by observers in the field Using the PNE to estimate group size is novel since most studies determine group size by estimating the number of visible individuals Investigations into the accuracy of observer estimates have found that estimates can vary widely between observers and tend to underestimate group size especially as group size increases Here I found that the sizes of resting groups in the Marquesas Islands were large median 458 and that on average the mark resight model estimated the true group size to be 1.5 times greater than the visual counts By comparing sightings of DMIs between islands I found evidence of limited movement of DMIs between the surveyed islands Eight DMIs first seen at Ua Pou were resighted from 3 to 13 days later at Nuku Hiva a distance of approximately 50 kilometers No DMIs first documented at Mohotani or Ua Huka were resighted at any of the other islands While the short time between surveys limits the conclusions that can be made these results suggest an interesting pattern of habitat use within the islands especially given the similar distance between encounters at Ua Huka and Nuku Hiva The minimum abundance of melon headed whales in the Marquesas Islands was estimated using the Lincoln Petersen two sample mark recapture model I first compared DMI images from pairs of resting group encounters at each island to identify resightings of DMIs between encounters Information on the number of DMI images per encounter and the number of DMIs seen in the first encounter and subsequently resighted in the second encounter were incorporated into the model to derive an estimate of the total number of DMIs for each island Since only information on DMIs was incorporated into the model the minimum abundance at each island was calculated by adjusting the estimate of the total number of DMIs by the proportion of quality DMI images in each data set The minimum abundance at each island ranged from 300 95% CL 188 412 CV 0 19 at Ua Pou to 631 95% CL 475 788 CV 0 13 at Mohotani Summing the estimates obtained at each island resulted in a minimum abundance estimate of 1 785 95% CL 1506 2065 CV 0 36 melon headed whales in the Marquesas Islands during the study period The establishment of the first melon headed whale photo identification catalog for melon headed whales in the Marquesas Islands lays a foundation for future investigation into the population structure of this enigmatic species in the islands The waters around the Marquesas Islands supports a diverse marine community including several species of small cetaceans and represents an area of high productivity in an otherwise oligotrophic region of the South Pacific French Polynesia has taken steps to protect this important habitat by designating the entirety of the French Polynesia EEZ as a Marine Mammal Sanctuary and by petitioning UNESCO to designate the Marquesas Islands as a World Heritage Site The baseline information provided by this thesis is an important step in understanding the population structure and habitat use of melon headed whales information crucial to effective conservation of this species in the Marquesas Islands

Twelve Days at Nuku Hiva Elena Govor,2010-03-31 In August 1803 two Russian ships the Nadezhda and the Neva set off on a round the world voyage to carry out scientific exploration and collect artifacts for Alexander I s ethnographic museum in St Petersburg Russia s strategic concerns in the north Pacific however led the Russian government to include as part of the expedition an embassy to Japan headed by statesman Nikolai Rezanov who was given authority over the ships commanders without their knowledge Between them the ships carried an ethnically and socially disparate group of men Russian educated elite German naturalists Siberian merchants Baltic naval officers even Japanese passengers Upon reaching Nuku Hiva in the Marquesas archipelago on May 7 1804 and for the next twelve days the naval officers revolted against Rezanov s command while complex crosscultural encounters between Russians and islanders occurred Elena Govor recounts the voyage reconstructing and exploring in depth the tumultuous events of the Russians stay in Nuku Hiva the course of the mutiny its resolution and aftermath and the extent and nature of the contact between Nuku Hivans and Russians Govor draws directly on the writings of the participants themselves many of whom left accounts of the voyage Those by the ships captains Krusenstern and Lisiansky and the naturalist George Langsdorff are well known but here for the first time their writings are juxtaposed with recently discovered textual and visual evidence by various members of the expedition in Russian German Japanese and by the Nuku Hivans themselves Two sailor beachcombers a Frenchman and an Englishman who acted as guides and interpreters later contributed their own accounts which feature the words and opinions of islanders Govor also relies on a myth about the Russian visit recounted by Nuku Hivans to this day With its unique polyphonic historical approach

Twelve Days at Nuku Hiva presents an innovative crosscultural ethnohistory that uncovers new approaches to and understandings of what took place on Nuku Hiva more than two hundred years ago

White Shadows in the South Seas Frederick O'Brien, 2019-11-29 Frederick O'Brien's White Shadows in the South Seas is a poignant and vivid portrayal of life in the South Pacific. Written in a descriptive and lyrical style, the book provides readers with a deep insight into the customs, traditions, and struggles of the native people. O'Brien's detailed observations of the natural landscape and the rich cultural tapestry of the region make this book a compelling and immersive read. Set against the backdrop of colonialism and cultural clashes, the narrative offers a critical perspective on the impact of Western influence on indigenous communities. The book is a blend of travelogue, cultural study, and social commentary, making it a valuable contribution to literature on the South Pacific. Frederick O'Brien's firsthand experiences living among the people of the South Seas shine through in his writing, adding an authenticity and depth to the narrative. His passion for exploring different cultures and shedding light on the complexities of human interactions is evident throughout the book. White Shadows in the South Seas is a must-read for anyone interested in anthropology, colonial history, or cultural studies, offering a unique and thought-provoking perspective on the complexities of cross-cultural encounters.

Pacific Encounters Steven Hooper, 2006-06-30 Pacific Encounters brings together for the first time many stunning Polynesian objects collected by voyagers and missionaries during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. Illustrated are over 270 items gathered from the major regions of Polynesia. Many are from the British Museum, which houses fine and rare material from the expeditions of Captain Cook, Captain Vancouver, and members of the London Missionary Society. Ranging from massive images of gods to small fish hooks, they are discussed in the contexts of their local use and meanings and their journeys to museums all over the world. These pieces have remarkable stories to tell of encounters between humans and their gods, between Polynesians and Europeans, their respective chiefs and priests, beliefs, and technologies. Pacific Encounters is a groundbreaking book that conveys the wonder and excitement not only of the objects themselves but of the fascinating Polynesian cultures that produced them.

Sexual Encounters Lee Wallace, 2018-05-31 European literary, artistic, and anthropological representation has long viewed the Pacific as the site of heterosexual pleasures. The received wisdom of these accounts is based on the idea of female bodies unrestrained by civilization. In a revisionist history of the Pacific zone and some of its preeminent Western imaginists, Lee Wallace suggests that the fantasy of the male body rather than of the free-loving female provides the underlying libidinal structure for many of the classic encounter narratives from Cook to Melville. The subject of Sexual Encounters is sexual fantasy, particularly male homoerotic fantasy, found in the literature and art of South Sea exploration, colonization, and settlement. Working at the boundaries of a number of disciplines such as queer theory, anthropology, postcolonial studies, and history, Wallace engages in subversive readings of eighteenth and nineteenth-century Pacific voyage journals, Cook in Hawaii, and a Russian expedition to the Marquesas, an argument concerning Gauguin's treatment of female figures, and a discussion of homosexuality and

Samoan male to female transgenderism These phenomena Wallace asserts demonstrate the continuity and dissonance between Western and Pacific sexual categories She reconstructs Pacific history through the inevitable entanglement of metropolitan and indigenous sexual regimes and ultimately argues for the importance of the Pacific in defining modern sexual categories

Typee: A Romance of the South Seas Herman Melville, 2024-01-20 Embark on a gripping journey to the exotic South Seas with Herman Melville in Typee: A Romance of the South Seas Penned in the mid 19th century this novel is a captivating blend of adventure cultural exploration and the author's personal encounters in the Marquesas Islands As Melville's narrative unfolds readers are immersed in the enchanting world of the Typee Valley where the protagonist Tommo finds himself among the island's indigenous people Melville's vivid descriptions transport readers to the lush landscapes vibrant communities and the allure of Polynesian culture More than a romantic adventure Typee stands as a literary exploration that delves into the complexities of cultural exchange and the human spirit Join Melville on this literary expedition where each page unveils a new facet of South Seas romance making Typee an essential read for those captivated by tales of exploration cultural encounters and the allure of the Pacific islands

Intimate Strangers Vanessa Smith, 2010-10-28 A fascinating study of the importance of ideas of friendship in late eighteenth century explorations of the Pacific

Dearest Beloved T. Walter Herbert, 1993 The marriage of Nathaniel and Sophia Hawthorne for their contemporaries a model of true love and married happiness was also a scene of revulsion and combat T Walter Herbert reveals the tragic conflicts beneath the Hawthorne's ideal of domestic fulfillment and shows how their marriage reflected the tensions within nineteenth century society In so doing he sheds new light on Hawthorne's fiction with its obsessive themes of guilt and grief balked feminism and homosexual seduction adultery patricide and incest

From Saranac to the Marquesas and Beyond Margaret Isabella Balfour Stevenson, Jane Whyte Balfour, 1903

In the Track of the Trades Lewis R. Freeman, 2022-06-13 In In the Track of the Trades Lewis R Freeman takes readers on a vivid journey through the Pacific navigating the cultural and physical landscapes he encounters with a deft literary touch This travelogue stands as a testament to the wanderlust that defined the early twentieth century's spirit of adventure Freeman's narrative meanders through locations such as San Pedro Hilo Honolulu and the Marquesas Islands disclosing their idylls and realities with equal fervor His prose harmoniously blends the observational with the introspective foregrounding his experiences against a backdrop of changing global interactions and cultural dynamics making the reader an intimate confidant in his explorations The book is imbued with the zeitgeist of its era while simultaneously offering timeless insights into humanity's perpetual desire for adventure and understanding Lewis R Freeman an American explorer and journalist was no stranger to the call of the distant horizon His compendium of books on travel is a testament to a life spent in relentless pursuit of the stories and experiences that paint the wider picture of the human condition In the Track of the Trades is a culmination of Freeman's extensive voyages and reflects a confluence of his expertise in navigation keen journalistic instincts and ability to tease out the sublime from the mundane His literary sojourn is more than a mere recounting of travels it is a crafted narrative that speaks to the era s socio political currents and a personal quest for meaning that transcends geographical bounds Recommended for readers with a thirst for adventure and an appreciation for lyrical travel writing In the Track of the Trades offers more than a glimpse into the bygone days of exploration It beckons the modern reader to reflect on their place in the world and the countless narratives that weave through the fabric of global heritage Freeman s work is an invitation to rediscover a world that while immensely changed still holds echoes of the past that resonate with the adventurous spirit inherent in us all

Smoking Mirror Douglas Rees,2005 A Junior Library Guild Selection A haunting deeply affecting book Set on the island of Tahiti this story of artist Paul Gauguin and the young man he immortalized in his paintings reads like a tropical breeze easy and relaxed at first feel but hinting at dangerous storms brewing ahead Highly recommended Brent Hartinger author of The Order of the Poison Oak and The Last Chance Texaco This second book in the new Art Encounters series centers on Paul Gauguin s painting Landscape with Peacocks or Matamoe and recreates the world the artist found in Tahiti when he painted the picture in 1892 This action packed South Sea adventure is about a young sailor Joe Sloan and his mission to avenge the death of his friend Robert Joe searches for Robert s girlfriend a Tahitian girl named Tehane to deliver the sad news personally He doesn t have to go far before fate reunites him with his friend s killer the Marquesan warrior Gun and his evil master a man known as the White Wolf As Joe navigates the unknown territory of Tahiti and its people he finds an unlikely ally in French artist Paul Gauguin In the course of the story readers are introduced to Gauguin and his work the artist s relationships with the Tahitian natives and his artistic temperament Paul Gauguin in Tahiti Paul Gauguin spent his life searching for paradise a propensity that must have been set during his vagabond youth spent sailing around the world He became a painter relatively late in life with encouragement from Pissarro Ceacute zanne and other impressionists Ever the outsider Gauguin left France and sailed for Tahiti in 1891 to escape debt and ruin as well as everything that is artificial and conventional But to his deep disappointment Tahiti was not the tropical paradise he had imagined It had been thoroughly westernized Nonetheless he settled in Papeete and created some of his finest paintings He had not found the simplicity of primitive life so he painted it in such works as Landscape with Peacocks or Matamoe Except for one visit to France he remained in the South Pacific for the rest of his life For readers 12 and up The second book in the new Art Encounters series Gauguin is frequently studied in elementary school because of the importance of his art to the post impressionist period The story is based around Gauguin s painting Landscape with Peacocks or Matamoe Pushkin Museum St Petersburg Russia

Food Leo Coleman,2013-05-09 Food preparation consumption and exchange are eminently social practices and experiencing another cuisine often provides our first encounter with a different culture This volume presents fascinating essays about cooking eating and sharing food by anthropologists working in many parts of the world exploring what they learned by eating with others These are accounts of specific experiences of cooking in Mombasa shopping for organic produce in Vienna eating vegetarian in Vietnam raising and selling chickens in Hong Kong and of refugees subsisting on food aid With a special focus on the experience and challenge of ethnographic fieldwork the essays cover a wide range of topics in food studies and anthropology including food safety and food security cultural diversity and globalization colonial histories and contemporary identities and changing ecological social and political relations across cultures Food Ethnographic Encounters offers readers a broad view of the vibrancy of local and global food cultures and provides an accessible introduction to both food studies and contemporary ethnography Marquesan Legends, 1971 Re-imagining Literary America Birgit Brander Rasmussen, 2003
