Metamorphic Crystallization:

Metamorphic Crystallization Ralph Kretz,1994-12-05 Metamorphic Crystallization investigates the upper regions of the crystalline Earth where countless solid state chemical changes have taken place during the long history of the planet. The exploration proceeds in five stages. Firstly a brief reminder of the importance of field microscopic and experimental phase equilibrium results in metamorphic studies is given followed by a review of classical thermodynamics as applied to minerals. Different kinds of mineral equilibria are defined and representative natural and experimental examples of each kind are examined. The kinetics of reactions involving crystals reaction rate diffusion nucleation crystal growth referring to certain experiments that have provided information on these microprocesses are reviewed. Finally the granular microstructure of natural samples crystal shape size spatial distribution together with chemical data are examined and an interpretation of these observations in terms of mineral kinetics is pursued. This exploration intends to leave the reader more appreciative of changes which occur within the Earth and more interested in the application of thermodynamics and kinetics in the study of these changes.

Reimold, Roger Lawrence Gibson,2006-01-01 This Special Paper presents a collection of 19 papers contributed to a joint Field Forum organized by the Geological Society of America and the Geological Society of South Africa in July 2004 in the Barberton Greenstone Belt and the Vredefort Dome South Africa. The papers cover a wide variety of themes including Archean and Proterozoic crust formation and geodynamics with an appraisal of evidence of Archean subduction processes the significance of impacts in the evolution of the early Earth's crust traces of early life in Archean environments of Australia and South Africa and related studies of depositional environments and processes affecting the giant Witwatersrand gold deposit.

Igneous and Metamorphic Petrology Francis J. Turner, John Verhoogen,1951 Definition and classification of different kinds of rocks are essential in furnishing a language by which petrological concepts may be conveyed and observational data concerning rocks may be intelligibly recorded. However there is no general agreement as to the most satisfactory basis of classification or as to the extent to which precision of definition is desirable and practicable.

Augustithis,1990 Hardbound This monograph is essentially an atlas illustrated by 375 figures mainly photomicrographs presenting the most common and significant textures of the metamorphic metasomatic rocks from many important regions of the world. The book as a whole covers the wide spectrum of metamorphic processes and the basic relation of metamorphic processes and textures is
