Smith,1998 This book has three interlocking themes It is concerned first with the advance and subsequent decline of the Wesleyan Methodist efforts in education during the nineteenth century Secondly it is about Dr James Harrison Rigg an irascible and self opinionated Victorian minister who became Principal of Westminster Methodist Training College and President of the Methodist Conference He had a dominant influence over his church for many years and dictated its education policy He also gained the ear of many in government who were formulating educational legislation and the book assesses his influence on government ideas The final and overriding theme of the book is the anti Catholicism within the Methodist church throughout the nineteenth century which influenced Wesleyan attitudes towards government education policy in general and towards Anglican Tractarian schools in particular The book is invaluable for students of nineteenth century religious history and is worthwhile for others interested in ecclesiastical history

Methodist mission in Peru in particular its educational work within the Peruvian socioeconomic formation and its ideological and intellectual changes. Yet her study goes beyond Methodist boundaries. Social Gospel doctrine and educational theory which link American Progressivism especially John Dewey's pedagogical ideas with Christianity are also treated at an interdenominational level. The book contends that Methodist schools constituted an educational system of their own within a socioeconomic formation of uneven character a society where an imperialist presence was interwoven with pre capitalist as well as local incipient capitalist forms. The author's analysis of the political dimension of missionary work from the quest for religious freedom to the attempt to exert influence on social movements leads her to consider the relationships among APRA leaders the missionaries and the interdenominational Committee on Cooperation in Latin America. Bruno Jofr argues that Social Gospel doctrines although couched in reformist language were ultimately a vehicle of North American theology. This book presents a refreshingly wide perspective on the development of education in the Third World as affected by missionary bodies from the First World.

History of the Sunday School Movement in the Methodist Episcopal Church Addie Grace Wardle, 1918

John Wesley and the Education of Children Linda A. Ryan, 2017-11-06

Scholars have historically associated John Wesley's educational endeavours with the boarding school he established at Kingswood near Bristol in 1746. However his educational endeavours extended well beyond that single institution even to non Methodist educational programmes. This book sets out Wesley's thinking and practice concerning child rearing and education particularly in relation to gender and class in its broader eighteenth century social and cultural context. Drawing on writings from Churchmen, Dissenters, economists, philosophers and reformers as well as educationalists this study demonstrates that the political, religious and ideological backdrop to Wesley's work was neither static nor consistent. It also highlights Wesley's eighteenth century fellow Evangelicals including Lady Huntingdon, John Fletcher, Hannah More and Robert Raikes to demonstrate whether Wesley's thinking and practice around schooling was in any way unique. This study sheds light on how Wesley's attitudes to education were influencing and influenced by the society in which he lived and worked. As such it will be of great interest to academics with an interest in Methodism, education and eighteenth century attitudes towards gender and class.
