Platten, Gigliola Sulis, 2019-08-02T00:00:00+02:00 In recent decades crime fiction has enjoyed a creative boom Although as Alison Young argues in her book Imagining Crime 1996 crime stories remain strongly identified with specific locations the genre has acquired a global reach illuminating different corners of the world for the delectation of international audiences The recent fashion for Nordic noir has highlighted the process by which the crime story may be franchised as it is transposed from one culture to another Crime fiction has thus become a vehicle for cultural exchange in the broadest of senses not only does it move with apparent ease from one country to the next and in and out of different languages but it is also reproduced through various cultural media What is involved in these processes of transference Do stories lose or gain value Or are they transformed into something else altogether How does the crime story that originates in a specific society or culture come to articulate aspects of very different societies and cultures And what are the repercussions of this cultural permeability
