Americans declared independence from Mexico and created a nation in the Mexican province of Texas. After winning independence in 1836, Texas became an independent republic. Texas formally asked to be annexed by the United States in 1845. This annexation angered the Mexican government, which still considered Texas to be part of its territory. Mexico had previously warned that the annexation of Texas would cause Mexico to declare war on the United States. When the annexation bill was passed by Congress, it included an additional provocation to Mexico: it claimed that the southern border of Texas was the Rio Grande. The actual territory controlled by the Republic of Texas did not extend nearly to the Rio Grande, and this border would represent a further loss of territory to the United States. When a Mexican patrol attacked American cavalry in the disputed area north of the Rio Grande, President Polk went to Congress for a declaration of war. The declaration passed on May 13, 1846. The war against Mexico was unpopular with the opposition Whig party, especially in the North. Opponents of the war denounced it as a war of aggression and denied that there had been a valid reason for war. Small American military units were quickly able to occupy key points in California, including San Francisco and Los Angeles. Although California was sparsely populated, some Mexican inhabitants formed an effective resistance, which was eventually put down in 1847 by American reinforcements. Subsequently, a larger American army was sent to invade central Mexico and managed to capture the Mexican capital, Mexico City, on September 13, 1847. Although a large Mexican army was still fighting, American forces in northeast Mexico and Texas, news of the capital falling caused it to retreat to try to retake the capital. After the defeat of the last Mexican army, major hostilities ended. The Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo ended the Mexican American War in February 1848. Mexico agreed to sell over half its territory for less than half of the money the United States had offered only two years earlier. As the Army occupied most of Mexico's major cities, Mexico had no choice but to accept the American terms. The new territory acquired in the treaty included all or part of the present-day states of California, Nevada, New Mexico, Arizona, Texas, Colorado, Utah, and Wyoming.

Texas and the Mexican-American War Fairfax Davis Downey, 2016-10-20. The Mexican American War established the reputation of Major General Zachary Taylor, resulting in his election as president of the United States. It also gave invaluable experience to young American officers who would play leading parts in the Civil War, among them Ulysses S. Grant, George H. Thomas, and George G. Meade on the Union side, and Robert E. Lee, Albert Sidney Johnston, Joseph E. Johnston, and Thomas J. Stonewall Jackson on the Confederate forces. Here are the battles from the Alamo to San Jacinto that ultimately led to a U.S. victory and vast expansion of its territory.

the Northern Frontier The United States the Northern Frontier's nearest neighbor was an ever expanding country driven by a spirit called Manifest Destiny According to the principals of Manifest Destiny the United States borders were fated to sweep west and reach the Pacific Ocean But blocking the westward expansion was Mexico's Northern Frontier In 1846 the United States and Mexico went to war over the issue of land The Mexican American War was fought from 1846 to 1848 Today the war is somewhat over looked in American history books because the great Civil War broke out a dozen years later and dominated subsequent events However the war is studied in Mexican classrooms where it is generally called the American Invasion of Mexico Because of the war Mexico lost its entire Northern Frontier to the United States For the Americans Manifest Destiny was complete as their nation now spread from sea to shining sea The Mexicans suffered a humiliating defeat and saw about half their land swallowed up by their aggressive northern neighbors To a certain extent bitterness over the Mexican American War lingers in Mexico even today Book jacket A Short, Offhand, Killing Affair Paul Foos, 2003-11-03 The Mexican American War 1846-48 found Americans on new terrain A republic founded on the principle of armed defense of freedom was now going to war on behalf of Manifest Destiny seeking to conquer an unfamiliar nation and people Through an examination of rank and file soldiers Paul Foos sheds new light on the war and its effect on attitudes toward other races and nationalities that stood in the way of American expansionism Drawing on wartime diaries and letters not previously examined by scholars Foos shows that the experience of soldiers in the war differed radically from the positive patriotic image trumpeted by political and military leaders seeking recruits for a volunteer army Promised access to land economic opportunity and political equality the enlistees instead found themselves subjected to unusually harsh discipline and harrowing battle conditions As a result some soldiers adapted the rhetoric of Manifest Destiny to their own purposes taking for themselves what had been promised often by looting the Mexican countryside or committing racial and sexual atrocities Others deserted the army to fight for the enemy or seek employment in the West These acts Foos argues along with the government's tacit acceptance of them translated into a more violent damaging variety of Manifest Destiny
